CITY OF GLENDALE'S ASSESSED VALUATION PLACED AT THIRTY MILLIONS OF DOLLARS

D. DONWELL MISSING IN $20,000 MYSTERY

Foul Play or Fraud Feared By Friends Here Who See Business Vanish

THE Premium Public Market, 123 North Glendale avenue, closed August 15 by petition of involuntary bankruptcy filed by three major creditors in the United States district court, Los Angeles, is open today for business, in charge of J. A. Poole, agent for William H. Moore, Jr., receiver—while somewhere, no one knows, not even his wife, David Donwell, proprietor, and known as a prosperous Glendale merchant, is missing with from $10,000 to $20,000 cash, his entire fortune.

As a result of the disappearance of Donwell, which took place the morning of August 7, a big business is swept away, two trucks and a private car are forfeited for defaulted payments, liabilities of $10,000 stare the receivers in the face, and Mrs. Donwell is left practically penniless.

Fear Foul Play

There are those who claim that Donwell's disappearance may be the culmination of a carefully laid plan to defraud not only the public but his wife, who worked side by side with him long hours of many months, in building up the prosperous business before its collapse. There are others who refuse to believe him capable of a dishonorable act, claiming his disappearance is due either to mental derangement or foul play.

Certain facts tend to support both claims. It is known that he recently sold the property at 123 North Glendale avenue, on which the market is located, succeeding in getting his wife's signature only after great difficulty.

The property consists of 50x150 feet on Glendale avenue, reaching through to Geneva street, im-

Lawyers Prepare Case As Screen Star Hides

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 17.—Mary Miles Minter, screen star, missing since Tuesday when she declared her love for William Desmond Taylor, slain motion picture director, and revealed that she was engaged to marry him at the time he was murdered, was reported "found" today by friends, but her whereabouts were not revealed.

Miss Minter is said to have sent a message stating that she had not fled the country as persistent reports claimed but that she was taking a much needed rest. Meanwhile, her attorney, Neil McCarthy, and Attorney John Mott, who is representing her estranged mother, Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, whom the actress declares she will sue for the return of more than a million dollars which she earned in films, were preparing papers in the case today. Friends of Miss Minter and her mother hope that a settlement of the case may be made out of court.

Firebug Faces First Degree Murder Charge

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 17.—District Attorney J. J. Henderson announced today that F. Padilla, Mexican firebug, will be charged with first degree murder, based on his confession that he set fire to the Japanese Buddhist school here in which ten children were burned to death.

Padilla, whose wholesale campaign of destruction is believed to have caused damage estimated at $5,000,000, continued his confession and now admits burning buildings, in Santa Ana, Anaheim, Sanger, Colton, San Bernardino, Fresno, Stockton, Fullerton and Sacramento.

Padilla could not recall the names of structures he fired in all of the cities, but will accompany officers on a trip to identify the buildings.

Padilla, who is believed to be a pyromaniac, admits he deserted from the army and is wanted on several other charges in various parts of the country.

Building Permit Total For Month Now $417,863

FIRST sixteen days of August saw $417,863 in building permits issued by the Glendale city building department, according to H. C. Vandewater, superintendent.

August of last year rung up a total of only $394,204, according to the figures he has of records. The total so far this year is $6,151,834.

Not so bad, eh?

WAY OPEN TO FRANCE FOR SETTLING DISPUTE

New German Chancellor's Maiden Speech Offers Chance, Is Claim

By FRITZ EBERT, Jr.
Son of President Ebert of Germany.
Copyright, 1923, by International News.

BERLIN, Aug. 17.—Chancellor Gustav Stresemann's maiden speech in the Reichstag, clearly opened the way for an understanding with France. If France will give up her humiliating and impossible demands, then conciliation will be possible, also settlement.

Chancellor Stresemann's speech was significant. It was made at a time when, beneath the surface, grave dangers were threatening Germany. Bloody communist disorders had broken out, which, for a time, seemed about to make the Red aspirations successful. Also, a general strike had been proclaimed. But luckily the whole storm blew over just as the new cabinet made its debut.

The outside world, especially France, is grievously mistaken if it believed the new cabinet will "crawl to Paris offering unconditional surrender and begging for mercy."

Stands As Bulwark

The new government stands as a bulwark against all attempts to annex or violate a single foot of German soil. This is proved by two developments:

First—Inclusion of the cabinet of Herr Soltmann, a Republicanish Social Democrat, as Minister of Interior.

Second—Creation of a special post called "Minister of Occupied Territory" which will be administered by Dr. Fuchs, president of the Rhine Province, who was expelled by the French.

This is proof of the consolidation of the young German Republic. The Streseman cabinet is backed up by the strongest parliamentary authority any nation has ever known. It constitutes the final supreme attempt to save Germany.

Georgians Lynch Two Negroes in One Day

ATLANTA, Aug. 17.—Two negroes lost their lives at the hands of Georgia mobs today, according to word reaching Atlanta.

Aaron Harris, the first victim, was taken from the Blakely City county jail at Cochran, early this morning, and lynched because of an alleged attempt to assault a white woman here some time ago. He had been convicted in Bibb county court and was sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment for burglary.

Lee Green, negro, from Houston county, who was arrested at Macon last night, was taken from officers near here today and, according to reports, was lynched.

Deadlock Broken in Coal Parley, Belief

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—It was reported this afternoon, apparently from a reliable source, that the deadlock in the anthracite coal controversy was broken. According to this information, the operators and representatives of the miners agreed to meet in Atlantic City Monday morning to resume negotiations in an effort to avert a strike in the anthracite fields September 15. It was said that the formal announcement of the agreement would be made later in the day.

MODERNIZED BANK BLOCK FOR EAST BROADWAY

Pacific Southwest Branch to Spend $14,000 on New Improvements

ALTERATIONS for the Glendale avenue branch of the Pacific Southwest Trust & Savings Bank at the corner of Broadway and Glendale avenue will be made to the extent of $14,000, according to a building permit issued this morning at the city hall.

The branch, which is conducted most efficiently by Herman Nelson, vice-president and manager, occupies the old Bank of Glendale building, a two-story strucure which for years was the pride of the city. This block will be modernized in every respect and the banking quarters enlarged to meet the demands of ever-increasing patronage.

"We are particularly looking to the future," says Mr. Nelson, "in making the alterations at this time. The paving of Glendale avenue, which has already been ordered by the city, will make this corner one of the principal traffic centers of the city with accompanying business which will justify our plans for development."

Depot and Store

Another permit of importance to Glendale avenue is the construction of a $14,000 store and depot office building for the Glendale & Montrose railroad. This is in line with the company's extension of its interurban service south on Glendale avenue over the Union Pacific lines into Los Angeles, giving eastern Glendale a new ingress and egress with the metropolis.

Among the other permits of consequence is a trio of structures costing $20,000 to be erect-

FEDERAL SUIT PLANNED ON PRICE FOR GASOLINE

Agents for Government in Long Investigation of Mid-West Situation

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—A suit in equity under the general criminal statutes to break up alleged combinations to control gasoline prices was being planned today by the department of justice.

Attorney General Daugherty has not decided when federal action would be instituted and the time and place of initiating a suit will depend upon a summary of the report now being filed with the bureau of investigation with respect to the "gasoline price war" in the middle west.

Public pressure for governmental action has spurred the department of justice to forsake the slow processes of the federal trade commission. The United States attorneys have been instructed to investigate, as to control of prices. The ownership of so-called independent oil companies by the larger concerns also is being made the subject of investigation.

Long Investigation

CHICAGO, Aug. 17—For weeks department of justice agents have been investigating the oil industry of the middle west, a Standard Oil Company official told International News Service today when informed Attorney General Daugherty was planning action to break up any combinations that might be found. Agents of the department's Chicago office refused to reveal what would be the nature of the reports they will submit to the attorney general.

The investigation began, the Standard official said, soon after it was announced that certain mid-continent producers were planning to halt production because of the surplus they professed to see in the market.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS IN FIGHT FOR CONTROL

Several Launch Booms for Senate Presiding Officer; War on Lodge

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
For International News Service

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Reorganization of the Republican leadership in the next Congress will lead to a determined fight to place "young blood" in control, even at the cost of an internal battle at the capitol. If insurgent movements are successful, there will be a complete shake-up of Republican leadership in the Senate with younger men placed in charge of the party's legislative program. In the house, through the defeat of former Republican Leader Mondell of Wyoming, similar changes are expected.

The Senate fight will revolve around the election of a vice-president to succeed Calvin Coolidge as permanent presiding officer. With the post paying $12,500 a year—$5,000 more than a Senator's salary, it is understood to be a widely sought political position. In addition it gives its occupant the distinction of outranking the cabinet at all social and diplomatic affairs.

Booms Under Way

Senator Cummins, Republican of Iowa, president pro tem in the last session, undoubtedly will be a candidate again, although he previously announced his determination not to run. Booms meanwhile have been launched for Senator Curtis, Republican of Kansas; Senator Jones, Republican of Washington; Senator Lenroot, Republican of Wisconsin and Senator Wadsworth, Republican of New York, and, as a result of the Republican caucus, may develop into a free-for-all political battle.

At the same time Republican insurgents are suggesting the retirement of Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, as Republican leader and the selection of a younger man to head the party in the Senate. As Lodge has a powerful following, a second plan is suggested for naming an assistant floor leader to direct the party, thus relieving Lodge of the leadership's most arduous task.

Dual Leadership

Strong, hearty leaders are mentioning Senator "Jim" Watson of Indiana, Senator Wadsworth of New York and Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin, for this post with Watson apparently having the inside track."

If Lodge should retire, a dual leadership may be arranged with Senators Watson and Wadsworth sharing the honors.

If Senator Curtis should be chosen president of the Senate another fight will develop over the naming of his successor as Republican "whip." Among the names mentioned for this post, if Curtis wins higher honors, are Senators Wadsworth, McNary of Oregon; Reed, of Pennsylvania, and Lenroot, of Wisconsin. There will be no opposition to the re-election of Curtis if he does not obtain the Senate's presidency.

Pursuit of Chinese Bandits Is Launched

SHANGHAI, Aug. 17.—Bandits who kidnaped two Italian priests at Tsashi and 100 Chinese Christians, after burning the mission compound, were being pursued today by hurriedly-organized forces of men.

Tha Hangkow vicinity is reported to be fairly seething with bandits, to whose list of numerous smaller local depredations this latest outrage has been added. In the past two weeks armed bands have been terrorizing resiants of this district by making midnight raids on the houses of the more prominent citizens.

Representatives of foreign governments are reported to be preparing to hold a conference early today, called by the Italian ambassador.

MAYOR DEFIES KLAN

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio, Aug. 17.—In a statement directed to the press early this afternoon, Mayor Frank A. Hawkins, in a reply to the local organization of the Ku Klux Klan, defies that organization to remove him.

2200 Volts Hit Man, Leave Via His Fingertip

C. J. CHISHOLM, an employe of the public service department of the city of Glendale, yesterday burned a hole in the little finger of his right hand while working on the power lines.

His body shorted two wires carrying 2200 volts and the shock passed through his body and out of the tip of the finger.

While the accident might have resulted in a fatality and fortunately is of minor consequence, Mr. Chisholm doesn't relish being a "human wire."

LOCAL GIRL BURNED TO DEATH IN NEVADA

Vivian Cozart, 12, Loses Life While on Outing With Her Father

A summer visit in Nevada before school began, proved tragic for Vivian Cozart, 12-year-old daughter of Wylie R. Cozart of 330 Oak street, pupil at the Pacific Avenue school, for she was burned to death Tuesday, August 14, 1923, when her clothing became ignited from kerosene she was using near a stove.

Complete details were not known this morning by her stepmother, for only a brief telegram had been received from Mr. Cozart, who was with his daughter visiting in Winnemucca, Nev.

Mrs. Cozart says that her husband and his daughter had gone to Nevada for a short visit before school begins. They left only a few days ago and the telegram telling of the tragedy came as a great shock to her.

Funeral Service Here

Vivian was born 12 years ago in New Mexico. She attended the Pacific Avenue school, where she was in the Sixth-A grade.

Besides her father and stepmother, she is survived by a sister, Mrs. Clarence Conklin of 7810 May avenue, Los Angeles.

Mr. Cozart is bringing his daughter's body to Glendale for the funeral services and burial. Services will be held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at the L. G. Scovern chapel on South Brand boulevard. Burial will take place in the Odd Fellows' cemetery in Los Angeles.

Klan War Feared as Miner Is Shot Down

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio, Aug. 17.—Steubenville's klan war threatened to break out anew early this morning, when John Marvin, 42, miner and alleged klansman, was found bleeding and unconscious after being shot twice by an unknown assailant. He is reported in a critical condition in a local hospital.

Mayor Frank Hawkins, Prosecutor Standton Pearce and Sheriff Edward Lucas have ordered the suspension of all public meetings until the tension that now exists dies down. The authorities are dispersing gatherings on the street corners. Large numbers of klan members from other points in the state have arrived and are quietly conducting an investigation into the attack on the klan parade here Wednesday night.

Parole Violator Will Be Returned to Jail

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 17.—Earl A. Yates of Kansas, who surrendered himself to the United States marshall's office for violation of his parole from Fort Leavenworth prison, was being held today pending the arrival of officers to return him to prison.

Yates is said to have been convicted in Kansas for counterfeiting and was later paroled with the provision that he was not to leave the jurisdiction of the state. However he came to California and later became tired of dodging officers and gave himself up.

GAIN OF EIGHT MILLIONS OVER LAST YEAR AS RESULT OF PROPERTY DEVELOPMENT

City Rate Will Be Lower, but That For Schools Increases; Ordinance Ready For Passage By City Council

GLENDALE'S assessed valuation today was revealed as $30,092,460 in figures provided by County Assessor Ed W. Hopkins, which show an increase of more than $8,000,000 over the 1922 total of $21,981,560. The city gained only $49,600 valuation by annexation during the year, the balance of the increase coming from improvements and development of local property.

The approximate 40 per cent increase in values here will enable the city to establish a tax rate of $1.13 and $1.14, City Controller Harry C. Saulsberry states and an ordinance fixing the rates of taxes and levying taxes for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1923, has been prepared.

The rates last year were $1.54 and $1.55 for municipal purposes and a total of $4.55 including city, school, county and flood control levies. Both the county and city rates will be lowered this year because of the increased valuations, but the school rate will be somewhat higher, it is predicted. The school rate was $2.18 last year.

LOWER RATE, BUT PEOPLE PAY AS MUCH AS EVER

An analysis of the situation shows that while the tax rate is lowered, the public is paying in dollars and cents as much as ever, and more in the instance of the schools.

In the language of figures, which may be more easily understood, the $1.54 rate last year on $21,981,560 assessed valuation amounted to $338,516.02 potential revenue. The $1.13 rate this year on the assessed valuation of $30,092,460 will net a potential revenue of $340,047.80, which reveals that Glendale's tax bill is about $1500 greater than before. However, an allowance of more than $500 must be made for annexed territory which makes the increase a matter of only $1000—a negligible amount.

Following is a part of the proposed tax ordinance designating the portions of the city and the rates for the respective funds needed in the administration of the municipality:

(a) All that portion of the City or Glendale included within the boundaries thereof as originally incorporated.

(b) All that territory annexed to the City of Glendale at annexation elections held October 14, 1911, and March 30, 1912, and known as West Glendale District and Verdugo Canyon District, respectively.

(c) All that territory annexed to the City of Glendale by annexation elections held on April 20, 1916, and known as Pumping Plant District and Remington District.

(d) All that territory formerly included in the City of Tropico.

(e) All that territory annexed to the City of Glendale by annexation election held on January 20, 1919, and known as the Grand Avenue District, and all that territory annexed to the City of Glendale by annexation elections held May 22, 1918, and known as Arden Avenue and Valley View Districts, and all that territory annexed to the City of Glendale by annexation election held August 7, 1918, and known as Kenilworth District.

(f) All that territory annexed to the City of Glendale by annexation election held June 30, 1921, and known as Pacific Avenue District; all that territory annexed to the City of Glendale by annexation election held July 14, 1921, and known as Viola Avenue Dis-

OIL PRODUCERS PLAN CONFERENCE

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—A committee representing midwest independent oil dealers, the same that conferred with Governor McMaster of South Dakota just before he agreed to put the price of gasoline back to a "reasonable" price—twenty cents a gallon—was to meet here this afternoon with officials of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. The conference was set for 3 p. m. Its nature was not disclosed.

CONSCRIPT MEN TO FIGHT FIRES

SANTA BARBARA, Aug. 17.—Men were conscripted from the streets here today and rushed to fight the renewed outbreak of a forest fire that is raging in the Sisquoc river region in the Santa Barbara forest reserve. Fanned by a stiff breeze, the flames which started two weeks ago and were apparently beyond control, today swept into the big San Maricos ranch and threatened heavy damage.

SEEK TO AVERT COAL STRIKE

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Through the action of the United States Coal Commission in demanding a showdown in the anthracite coal deadlock, operators and miners this afternoon agreed to resume negotiations to avert a strike September 1. The committee formally announced the operators and miners had agreed to renew their discussions at Atlantic City at 11 o'clock Monday morning. The formal announcement confirmed an earlier exclusive dispatch by International News Service to the effect that it had been decided such action would be taken.

W. B. Kirk Writes About Attractions Found In Norway

JOURNEYINGS through Norway are related today in the travel letter from W. B. Kirk. His letters from abroad are being followed with interest by Glendale Evening News readers and future letters are eagerly anticipated. In today's letter Mr. Kirk writes:

W. B. Kirk

"Oie, Norway, July 19. If you will take your map you will find that the two principal points on the 'fluted' west coast of Norway are Bergen and Trondhjem. If your map is good you will also find Molde, Aalesund, Christiansund, and Stavanger, below Bergen. Most of these other towns which I will mention, you may not find at all, and some others I will not even mention. My reason for stating the ones I will name is because some of you may take this trip sooner or later, and they may be of value to you.

"It is queer that out of the thousands of Americans who come to Europe every year, so comparatively few reach this section. I looked at the register at Molde yesterday and found that not a dozen Americans had registered there since July 1, and it is the only tourist hotel in town. The guests are practically all Scandinavian, German and Dutch.

"The section between Trondhjem and Stavanger contains the scenic beauties so we selected it for our travels. The ride on the branch railroad between Durnbaas and Bjorli was along the side of the low mountains to the north of a valley with a long slope down to a river. On this slope the land is divided into very long and narrow farms by fences. They are only a few hundred feet apart and look very old, the houses being built up along the road and close to each other.

"Many of them are small log houses covered with roofs of turf on which grass and weeds are growing luxuriantly. It is not unusual to see good-sized trees growing on these roofs. How the farmers eke out a living on these little farms with as little growing season as Norway, is a question. Only about two per cent of Norway is susceptible to cultivation.

"At Bjorli we made connection for our first auto trip to Aandalsnes. It was a two-hour ride amid wonderful scenery; don't ever miss it. When I tell you that we passed waterfalls by the hundred, I am not over-stating. The road is down a river valley with mountains on both sides, not of very great height but there is snow on all of them and very deep on some.

"The season is so late that it is only the past few days that the warm sun has been melting the snow so that now every crevice on the mountain side is a running stream. Some of these were small like ribbons, others large, flowing enough water for a good-sized creek, and as the mountains are steep the fall is very swift.

"Some of these falls were 2000 or 2500 feet high and in one place

Woman of 85 Enjoys Ride on Motorcycle

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 17.—"More speed!" was the cry of Mrs. Annie Vornholdt, 85 years old, of this city, who recently took her first ride in a motorcycle sidecar—a 150-mile grind at an average of 30 miles an hour.

Mrs. Vornholdt experienced a sudden longing to ride in one of the vehicles while sitting at the window of her home watching traffic. Her great-nephew, Harry Alton, who owns a motorcycle outfit, made arrangements, and, to the old lady's great glee, took her for what most riders would regard as a long trip.

"Motorcycles ride better than automobiles, because there's no roof to bump your head on," was Mrs. Vornholdt's comment. "I wish I were young enough to drive one, but the best I can do is just ride along. Now I want to go up in a balloon and an airplane."

Social Events

Entertain Team

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fortunato at 534 North Isabel street, was the scene of a gay affair last night when they entertained a number of friends at a banquet in honor of the Jensen bowling team of which Mr. Fortunato is captain.

The rooms of the Fortunato home were artistically decorated with a profusion of yellow flowers. The banquet table was centered with a large bouquet of yellow flowers and greenery and the favors and place cards were cleverly designed as bowling balls and ten pins.

Following the banquet, the evening was devoted to a social time and later a radio program was enjoyed.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Huesman, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hannes, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Keane, Francis Breheme and Miss Breheme and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fortunato.

Shower Affair

Miss Esther Besant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Besant of 202 West Palmer street, who is leaving this week to resume her work as a senior at the University of California at Berkeley, was complimented last night at a handkerchief shower given by the Epworth Leaguers of the Central avenue church at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Baker at 1819 South Brand boulevard.

Music and games were entertainment features, and just before the serving of refreshments Miss Norma Wallace, on behalf of the company, presented Miss Besant with a package containing the shower of gifts.

Mrs. Baker was assisted by Miss Wallace and Miss Mary Bear.

Kelley Block on North Brand Sells at $65,000

A forerunner of the record realty activity predicted for the fall, is the announcement of a North Brand boulevard deal, just consummated, whereby F. W. Pigg of 405 North Brand boulevard, long time a Glendale resident, becomes owner of fifty feet at 235 North Brand boulevard. Freeman McG. Kelley was the owner and received the price of $65,000 for the property.

On the property is a two story brick building, the Brand Department store occupying the lower floor, and apartments being on the second floor.

Mr. Pigg, who is of the Pigg and Irwin firm of 217 South Brand boulevard, intends to spend $10,000 more on improvements. His purchase is indicative of the faith he has in North Brand boulevard future possibilities and will undoubtedly result in other development and purchases.

A. M. Barker Family Here From Alabama

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Barker and their son, Tommy, arrived in Glendale yesterday afternoon by motor, from Muscle Shoals, Ala., after a trip of nearly a month, during which time they camped out along the roads, which they found good, bad and indifferent by turns.

The Barkers left Muscle Shoals July 19. Upon arriving in Glendale yesterday afternoon, they immediately called upon their friends, Harry Machtolff and family, on Vine street.

The tourists plan to stay in Glendale a day or so, then proceed on up the coast and into British Columbia.

Mr. Barker states that the people of Muscle Shoals look with favor upon the Henry Ford development proposal.

Family Reunions

During the summer visit of Mrs. P. J. Jorgenson and Miss Rhoda Anderson of Chicago, at the home of Mrs. Jorgenson's sister, Mrs. H. H. Wheeler, at 245 North Belmont street, members of the family have enjoyed a series of informal reunions.

This week a party of relatives and friends motored to Big Bear valley for a camping outing.

There were two automobiles, making the trip into the valley by way of Cajon pass.

The party included Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Wheeler, Miss Rhoda Anderson, Miss Jennie Anderson of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Haddock of Cucamonga, and C. A. McAdams of Fresno.

The return to Glendale was made yesterday.

Tomorrow night the Wheeler home will be the scene of a final family reunion and dinner before Mrs. Jorgenson's departure for Chicago on Sunday.

Miss Anderson has gone north to visit her brother before leaving for her Chicago home.

ART SMEARED BY BELGIANS, CLAIM

Museum Keeper Charges That Exhibitors Varnished Old Masterpiece

By HARRY R. FLORY
For International News Service

PARIS, Aug. 17.—Charging them with defacing and destroying the value of a famous painting, "The Virgin and the Saints," sixteenth century work of the Flemish artist, Gerard David, M. Guey, keeper of the museum of the city of Rouen, has brought action for damages against Leonce Benedite and Andre Dezarroi, organizers of a recent Belgian art exhibition here.

The painting, valued at several millions of francs and Rouen's most treasured work of art, was loaned to Benedite and Dezarroi for the exhibition, after the latter had signed an iron-bound agreement to restore the masterpiece to Rouen in the same state in which they received it.

Several weeks after the exhibition opened, Guey, on a visit to Paris, took a look at "The Virgin and the Saints."

Appearance Changed

To his indignation he discovered the masterpiece didn't have the same appearance in the Jeu de Paume museum it proviously had in its dark little corner of the Museum of Rouen. He immediately charged Benedite and Dezorroi with having applied a coating of vaseline to the picture to make it more photographic, and also with having very badly applied a new coating of varnish.

Benedite and Dezarroi called in experts from the Louvre and from the Museum of Dijon. The experts decided the painting had received a coating of wax at some date far in the past, but that it had not recently been touched. They decided that Guey's charges grew out of the fact that he had never before seen the painting in a bright light and therefore didn't know its real state of preservation.

Before the experts' decisions the charges of Guey promised to attract as much attention as investigations now being made of charges of falsified statuary in the Louvre. The damage action is still pending, but it is probable, in view of the decision of the experts, that it will be dropped.

Stambolisky's Friends Were In Plot With Foes of Bulgaria Charge

CONSTANTINE STEPHANOVE
For International News Service

SOFIA, Aug. 17.—Fresh fuel has been added to the Balkan political pot, which has been boiling energetically since the revolution which overthrew the regime of the late Premier Alexander Stambolisky by charges that Stambolisky and several confederates who afterwards became ministers in his cabinet were traitors to the Bulgarian cause during the World War. The charges are made by M. Vassitch, a Serbian military officer, and have aroused intense interest throughout the Balkan states.

Writing in a recent issue of the Serbian newspaper, Novosti, published at Belgrade, M. Vassitch said:

Counterplot Charged

"After the failure of the offensive started by Hindenburg on the west front the name of Stambolisky began to be heard frequently in Bulgaria, and not only in Bulgaria but also in the Allied Council at Salonica. Stambolisky, it seemed, was playing an important role, and, despite the fact that he was still in prison, he nevertheless had able associates in the persons of Thodoroff, who afterward became his Minister at Belgrade; Daskaloff, who became his Minister of the Interior, and others who were in touch with the Entente leaders at the Salonica front.

"General Ribaroff, who at that time was commanding divisions facing the Entente forces, was also a party to the counterplot engineered by Stambolisky and his asociates. On the 15th of September, as is known, Bulgaria's defense collapsed, and the two divisions commanded by General Ribaroff threw down their arms and fled toward Sofia. Their conduct created confusion in the rear, as well as in other lines.

Strange Behavior

"As they retreated, Ribaroff's men shouted: 'Down with the war!' 'Long live the revolution!' 'Long live Stambolisky.'

"And then there happened what is considered a miracle by all Serbs. The Serbian army, though it had its way clear to Sofia, did not start for the Bulgarian capital, as was the proper thing to do. Wasn't that compensation for the services done the Entente by Stambolisky and his associates?"

It is understood that the charges will be thoroughly investigated by the present Bulgarian government and efforts made to punish those who may be found guilty of traitorous acts. General Ribaroff is now under arrest at Plevna.

SCIENTISTS MUST STABILIZE WORLD

Increased Wealth Producing Power Premier Problem, Declares Chemist

By F. A. WRAY
For International News Service

LONDON, Aug. 17.—Upon mankind's "increased power to produce wealth" lies the future security of the world, Sir Alfred Mond, former cabinet minister and leading industrial chemist of Europe, asserts.

Sir Alfred Mond was addressing the students of Swansea University college. The necessity for the production of more and more wealth through the aid of science was his text.

"The future prosperity of the world," he said, "the solution of its economic difficulties, the security of its teeming millions depends far more upon its scientific progress, upon its increased power to produce wealth by the application of scientific thought and method to its industrial problems than to any other form of human effort.

Must Enrich World

"If Britain," continued Sir Alfred Mond, "is to regain in the financial field what she lost in the war she must find new methods of enriching the world. She must increase her entire production of real commodities in relation to man-power; she must have better methods of manufacture and produce at lower cost. The application of scientific invention and scientific methods, of new processes and new products constitutes the avenue of escape from England's economic dilemma.

"Whole avenues of new approaches to industrial problems have been opened up by the theory of electrons, on which is based the modern process of electrolysis. The manufacture of chlorine and the resulting caustic soda is about the most striking instance of the substitution of electric for chemical action.

"Then there is the application of catalysis to industrial problems.

Use New Discoveries

"Take Professor Sabatier's discovery in connection with the process of fat-hardening by hydrogenation, owing to the catalyptic action of finely divided metals in turning soft, unsaturated fats like olein into hard saturated fats like stearin."

Government Has 400 Buffaloes for Sale

PORTLAND, Aug. 17.—The Government would like to sell about 400 buffalo ranging on the bison range of Montana, near the old Flathead Indian reservation at Dixon, according to Smith Riley, head of the bird and animal reservation department of the United States. He reports that the buffalo are increasing so rapidly that the food capacity of the range has been reached. The herd was originally known as the Pablo herd and numbered but 16 in 1904. The name Pablo came from a famous old Flathead Indian, who was a buffalo trader.

EXCLUSIVE LOTS AT LOW PRICES

Property in Very Heart of Verdugo Woodlands Is Offered Public

The sensation of the year in Glendale real estate values is announced today by Twining & Myers of 227-A South Brand boulevard, well known subdivision firm, which has found a tract in the very heart of Verdugo Woodlands along Verdugo road which they are able to offer at unusually low prices.

Heretofore the exclusive canyon residential property has been priced beyond the reach of many Glendale homebuilders, but if you will drive out to Verdugo road and Opechee way today there is a surprise in store for you.

Twining & Myers have put in several new streets, redivided some of the most beautiful woodland property into fair sized building lots where temporary homes will be permitted. The ridiculously low figures of $900 to $1950 have been placed on this subdivision and an almost immediate sale of the limited number of lots is expected.

Perfect Location

There is little need to describe the beauties of the Green Verdugo hills for the readers of The Evening News. Suffice it to say that this subdivision is close to the car line, has city improvements, walking distance from Happyland Amusement park and fronts on the main Verdugo boulevard.

Twining & Myers are so satisfied with their offering that they are willing to let the buying public judge the value without debate. In other words the property should sell itself after the opening announcement.

Optimism Prevails Here
Coal Strikes Aid Southland
Real Estate Development
Visitor Commends This City

By Gil A. Cowan

OPTIMISM is one of Glendale's greatest assets. By this we do not infer that the people stand around "kidding" one another, but the majority of the city's populace has an infectious spirit of good cheer for everyone and everything.

It is so seldom you meet anyone with the grouch. Honestly, we don't believe a case of gout exists, and even those with indigestion try mighty hard to conceal their physical discomforts with a set smile. The police are seldom called to settle family quarrels. A fist fight is a most uncommon occurrence.

Yes, people are happy who live in Glendale. Most of them have their own homes, although apartments are becoming more numerous. And the happiness is to be seen even in the homes, where bright flowers adorn the yards and children and pets romp around in their glee.

There is no reason why we shouldn't be happy, even though we are confirmed pessimists. The latter are undoubtedly necessary, for it takes all kinds of people to make a world. But Noah knew that two of any one kind is enough and sometimes three is a crowd.

The forecasted coal strike in the East interests Southern Californians very little except that it means wealthy families will prepare to enjoy the coming fall and winter season on the shores of the Pacific.

And the more people who come here the less work there will be in the East with resultant hard times. In other words, the coal miners will be out of work, perhaps starving, while those whom they are striking at in their threats are basking in the Southland's sunshine.

It's a funny old world, the way tables turn.

Real estate business should be active from now on. The subdividers are recuperating from the vacation season and getting back to their business of promoting home making. The Glendale Evening News is going to aid these developers of Glendale, too, by giving the public the latest news on the real estate situation.

When you stop and consider the columns of "booster" articles this paper has published in the past, is it any wonder that Glendale has attracted so many people? We hear of responses to advertising in The Evening News which come from all parts of the country.

Little wonder, however, when we consider the great number of copies which are mailed to friends away from here by loyal subscribers of this representative newspaper.

William G. Cayce, staff correspondent for International News Service, had occasion to visit Glendale yesterday, and it was his pleasure to see the city from one of its promontories.

"You have a wonder city here," Mr. Cayce told the writer. "And you have one of the finest newspaper offices I have ever seen in the way of accommodating the public, the editorial staff and housing the equipment. It must be a pleasure to live in Glendale and work in The Evening News office."

Of course, we assured him it was. He greatly admired the new high school plant, he expressed astonishment at the great Glendale Sanitarium building, now in course of completion, and, no doubt, this city, in turn, will get some favorable publicity through the medium of International News Service, which on numerous occasions has given this city date lines in its correspondence.

While the writer was visiting Oxnard two weeks ago, he noticed The Daily Courier using several items emanating from Glendale. That is excellent publicity in calling attention of the outside world to this live, throbbing community of 40,000 people.

Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson is co-operating with the inspectors here in obtaining a site for more commodious headquarters for Uncle Sam's increasing postal business. It is a matter wherein discretion must be used and excellent judgment displayed.

Samuel G. Blythe, in a recent issue of The Saturday Evening Post, under the caption of "Pro Bono Publicity," made some mighty trite remarks about the individual seeking to get into the public eye.

One man, he recounted, hired a publicity director for his funeral. That made me laugh, but it undoubtedly was true.

And the writer of this column was almost indignant the other day when the secretary for a public official here didn't know me by name. There was a moral to that incident.

You may write it for yourself.

Would Wed Pavlowa to Get Russ Wolfhound

LONDON, Aug. 14.—Anna Pavlova, the Russian dancer, claims to be the only woman who ever was offered marriage by a man who wanted, not her, but her dog.

It happened in Montgomery, Ala., Pavlova was walking in the street, leading her pet Russian wolfhound. A well-dressed passer by stopped her and wanted to buy the dog.

"Certainly not," Pavlova replied. "I would not part with him for worlds."

The dog enthusiast became insistent—offered huge sums of money and declared he must have the canine that had so intrigued his fancy. Finally, seeing Pavlova was not to be persuaded by gold, he said:

"Well, if you won't part with the dog I will take you, too. I'll marry you right now, but I must have the dog."

"I was honored by the tribute he paid my dog," Pavlova said, "but not by his proposal of marriage. He did not get the dog."

NOTICE TO HEATING CONTRACTORS

the water falls over a ledge which is hollowed underneath and the water drops in a great sheet of spray for hundreds of feet; The foot of the mountains is covered with trees and as we sped along among these trees with the lower rapids coming right down to the road the sensation was indescribable.

"As this falling water swelled the river it rushed and roared along beside the road and fell in swift rapids and in beautiful falls. One of these was hidden from the road so we stopped and walked down among the trees to see it and get a snap shot. I can't describe it, won't try.

Wonderful View

"Finally the river became wide and deep, blue and still, till it was lost in the Fjord.

"We passed Romsdal Peak, about 6000 feet, and the highest in the range before reaching Aandalsnes at the head of the Fjord of the same name. After we had supped at the Grand Bellevue hotel (these hotels are all good) I went out to look around and we were surrounded on four sides by snow-capped mountains, the snow extending down almost to our feet.

"It was indeed a grand view. People were playing croquet out in the yard at 11 o'clock and when I retired at midnight I did so without light, as it was twilight.

"The trip down the Fjord the next morning was picturesque, the mountains rising out of the water resembling those on Catalina, except that they were wooded. The Fjord gradually widened and when we reached Molde it was several miles across and only two or three miles from the North Sea.

"Molde is in a beautiful location between the mountains and the Fjord and faces those snow-capped mountains in the Romsdal range. It is regarded as one of the scenic cities of Norway. It has been called 'The City of Roses' but we couldn't find them. They grow a very large cream-colored spirea, which is exquisite and the old-fashioned peonies are luxuriant and rich in coloring.

"Molde has a fine park and a cute little church, which contains a celebrated painting of the first Easter morn by Axel Ender. We were told that the face of the angel in the picture was the artist's own wife, he not being able to find any other woman beautiful enough to fill his ideal of what it should be. Certainly it is an angelic face, and a beautiful picture.

At Reckless Speed

"From Molde we had a small boat trip across the Fjord again to Vestnes, and a large motor car took us at reckless speed to Soholt, where we embarked again on a small but good boat up the Hjorden Fjord and then the Stor Fjord to Oie (Erye). Our fine weather failed us at Molde and light showers followed us on this trip.

"The clouds and fog obstructed our view of the mountains on either side, but we had glimpses of them and as we neared Oie the Fjord narrowed and we could see the patches of snow and waterfalls One of the pictures I remember as a boy, was of a girl in strange costume rowing a boat-load of hay across a Fjord in Norway. Doubtless many of you have seen the same picture. We certainly passed this original spot.

"We would see a turf-covered cottage and barns, with an acre or two of ground between the mountains and the water, absolutely cut off except by boat. The captain told me that these farmers have a few cows and some sheep and goats, which scale the mountain sides and live comfortably. A school building is located in another such spot and all the children go to school in boats.

"The captain showed me his chart and I was amazed at the depth of these waters. They run from 200 to 350 meters deep clear up to the end of the Fjords and frequently are forty or fifty meters right at the shore. Imagine it! These narrow channels from one-fourth to one-half mile deep! They contain some fish but the larger fishing is done from Allesund, below Molde on the North Sea.

"When we got to Oie at 8 p. m. we found ourselves in one of the most picturesque places of the whole trip. Our hotel faces one of the high waterfalls I have told you of. A large volume of water is falling 3600 feet, in plain view, some parts of it straight down. Its roar, like the surf, is heard all the time. A river flows into the Fjord just below us, stone fences surround the little farms up the road where the farmers, their wives, sons and daughters, are all making hay. They haul it in the little two-wheeled carts they all use, drawn by a stocky pony.

"They hang the hay on a rack like a fence and let it dry there. The tinkle of the cow bells is heard along the mountains, which are all around us and it looks as if we could touch the snow in the crevices.

Not Much Fruit

Little fruit is growing in Norway this year. Wild strawberries are just blooming and a few tame ones. Immense gooseberries and currants are coming on and a few cherries. They raise practically no apples, but make sauce of a small red berry something like the cranberry.

"An intelligent woman school teacher talking to the wife, had never heard of peaches and could not be made to understand exactly what they are. They have never heard of such things as roasting-ears (don't you pity 'em?), but they have some carrots, and plenty of turnips. Potatoes grow profusely; the lowly spud seems to be a staple all over the world.

"They raise some chickens and use some eggs for breakfast, but they don't know anything about turkeys, ducks or geese, at least I don't see any.

"This leads me to say that people who don't eat meat will have a hard time in Scandinavia. They serve it three times a day, hot, dried, salted and pickled. Meats and fish constitute the chief article of diet. We, as a family, are great lovers of vegetables, but you can't get 'em here so we eat what they have.

'Before I forget I must tell you of their three or four-story heating stoves. They are built much like their large clocks, tall and narrow. Some of them are fully eight feet tall and have fancy-work on the doors with gilded figures.

"Loen, Norway, July 21; We missed our connection for the next place on our itinerary and so had to change our route a little, but you'll never know the difference. We took an auto again Thursday morning and came here. The first important sight we had was of a land-slip in 1908, when an immense body of rocks fell from a mountain into the valley of Nordangsdalen and across a river, burying some huts and forming a large lake. The road is cut and blasted through the midst of these rocks.

Rich Vegetation

"As we sped on down, the snow got lower and great patches came right down to the river as it rushed along. The grandeur of the beautiful mountains towering right over our heads offset the cold wind which struck us.

"Rich vegetation abounded everywhere and ferns, ferns, you never dreamed of so many. Wild flowers, daisies, and wild roses in pure white, as well as pink, greeted us all along.

"How can I describe the strange greenness of the water as we caught glimpses of it in the Fjord as we moved down the grades; or the reflections of the mountains, clouds and sky in it as we drew nearer; or the quaint peasants whom we met and their odd, humble homes? I can't do so here.

"The weather had cleared again so we had fine views. Finally we reached this well known place, at the extreme end of Nord Fjord, not so picturesquely located as Oie, but having a splendid hotel, with plenty of tourists just now.

"We were very much surprised to see a German warship in the Fjord here, because I didn't know there was such a thing any more. The landlady said, in broken English, that she couldn't see how the Germans were permitted to spend money on warship cruises and training for war after all the allies have gone through. I wonder if the allies know this and if it is done with their consent? I suppose it is because one of the 'gobs' whom we met told me that the Germans still have six large and six small vessels of war.

"This one, 'The Kreuzer Thetis' is one of the small ones and has only about 240 men. They are just from the Kiel canal.

"This reminds me that the landlord of the hotel in Oie has lived in Santa Barbara and Los Angeles, and his wife likewise, and they have in their hotel parlor, framed signatures of some of the celebrities who have registered at their hotel. Among these are those of King Haakon and the Kaiser Wilhelm. They also show pictures of the beloved Bjornson and the great master Grieg. Statues of Ibsen and Bjornson adorn some of the cities.

How to Say it

"Our trip to the Kjendal glacier yesterday was made in unpropitious weather. We took a skyds (pronounced 'shiss', can you beat it?), which is one of their two-wheeled pony carts, for a couple of miles, then a little lake steamer for several miles and again a skyds for two or three miles further, to the glacier. On the way we passed where another and greater disaster occurred in 1905, when a part of a mountain suddenly sloughed off and fell into the lake below.

"There was such a quantity of rock that the water engulfed the houses on shore and drowned nearly all of the inhabitants. Sixty-two persons lost their lives and the bodies of only nine were ever recovered. A lake steamer like ours was raised nearly 200 feet and thrown on an island, where it still lies. Isn't it strange that other people have settled in the same spot and that new houses are still being built there?

"It has been showering all the way, but just as we came in sight of the glacier the sun came out and not a drop of rain fell while we were there. I had never seen a glacier before so to me this was 'some sight'. The entire upper area of these mountains is one mass of ice called a 'brae' and these glaciers are parts of this mass, slipping down between the mountains.

Rain for 24 Hours

"The upper part is nearly pure white, but the mass at the bottom of this one is covered with rocks and debris. It is in the form of an inverted umbrella, with large cracks corresponding to the ribs. These cracks and the entire base are of greenish blue ice and this blue deepens till it is almost a navy blue inside. We reached a large body of snow-ice and broke off some of it.

"Sandene, Norway, July 22; We have had twenty-four hours of showers, cold rain, the first real rain we have experienced. Fortunately we had a boat trip yesterday, from Loen here down the Nordfjord. We have a long, eight-hour auto trip this afternoon. It is cold and I fear will be uncomfortable, but though the fog is hovering over the mountains, maybe it won't rain. If we had had this trip yesterday we couldn't have made it at all. The Lord is watching over us."

Other travel sketches from Mr. Kirk's pen will appear in the columns of The Glendale Evening News upon the receipt of another letter from overseas.

BULGARS MURDER AGENT OF LENINE

Body, Hacked With Knives, Is Found in Vineyard After Revolt

SOFIA, Aug. 17.—One of the latest victims of the disturbances incident to the overthrow of the Stambolisky regime in Bulgaria is M. Sheleputin, the general agent in Bulgaria for the Russian Bolshevist Red Cross organization. Sheleputin's body was found in a vineyard near Plevna. He had been stabbed to death and his body literally hacked to pieces by the knives of his assailants.

The belief is general that Sheleputin was the victim of the vengeance of anti-Bolshevist Russians opposed to the Bolshevist regime who have found asylum in Bulgaria.

Operating as chief agent of Lenine in Bulgaria, Sheleputin is said to have had control of large sums of money and an effective organization. He is charged with having used his position in an attempt to intimidate Tsarist Russians into joining the Bolshevist cause. M. Stambolisky, the slain premier, is declared to have been friendly to Sheleputin and to have given tacit support to his acticities.

So long as Stambolisky was in power Sheleputin was safe, and the Tsarist Russians, despite their rage at his tactics, were powerless. With the passing of Stambolisky, however, and the active opposition of the new Bulgarian government to communistic activities, Sheleputin's security vanished. His mutilated body is believed to have been the answer of his enemies to the persecution they are alleged to have endured at his instigation.

DUPLICATE NAMES WORRY MAIL MEN

Lack of Originality Shown In Naming Towns Bane Of Postoffice

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The increasing multiplicity of towns of the same name and those with names strikingly similar is a source of much irritation and confusion to Uncle Sam's postal workers.

Yankee originality staggers when confronted with data collected by the department showing the large number of communities bearing the same and similar names. Towns named after celebrities are more numerous than others. Ben Franklin predominates abong them, having thirty-one communities in as many states named after him. This particularly rankles postoffice employes, as Franklin was the first postmaster general, also the father of the American Postal Service.

Some Are Unique

Postal workers, the department states, give fervent thanks that there is but one New York, San Francisco and New Orleans. But there thanks come to an end, as it is their daily labor to sort mail for twenty-five Clevelands, twenty-eight Washingtons, twenty-two Buffalos, fourteen Denvers, seven Detroits, six Philadelphias and two Chicagos.

The department further stated forty-three names are used more than twenty times. They are: Franklin, thirty-one; Clinton, thirty; Chester, twenty-nine; Arlington, twenty-nine; Washington, twenty-eight; Troy, twenty-seven; Salem, twenty-seven; Madison, twenty-seven; Marion, twenty-seven; Manchester, twenty-one; Clayton, twenty-seven; Glenwood, twenty-six; Kingston, twenty-six; Newport, twenty-six; Ashland, twenty-five; Centerville, twenty-five; Cleveland, twenty-five; Auburn, twenty-four; Dover, twenty-four; Hillsboro, twenty-four; Lincoln, twenty-four; Monroe, twenty-four; Princeton, twenty-four; Springfield, twenty-four; Warren, twenty-four; Union, twenty-four; Greenville, twenty-three; Wilson, twenty-three; Belmont, twenty-two; Canton, twenty-two; Dayton, twenty-two; Eureka, twenty-two; Liberty, twenty-two; Milford, twenty-two; Plymouth, twenty-two; Burlington, twenty-one; Lebanon, twenty-one; Portland, twenty; Lexington, twenty; Jamestown, twenty; Hudson, twenty; Danville, twenty.

U. S. Picked One

While Uncle Sam does not exert any influence in the naming of a town, the department states, a name cannot be selected if it is used elsewhere in the same state.

Thtre is but one case on record where the government suggested a name to a community officially, and then it was done unwittingly. It came about this way: A community in Missouri had been granted a postoffice, and a name had to be selected for it. After submitting several lists of names to the department and each in turn being found unsatisfactory, the citizens, exasperated, requested the department to select one for them. The dpartment in reply said: "It seems mighty 'peculiar' you cannot find a good name." In reply to this the community wrote: "Acting upon your suggestion, we have selected the name 'Peculiar.'" So Peculiar, Mo., is on the map today.

Mysteries of Kaula Rock to Be Explored

HONOLULU, Aug. 17.—United States birdmen attached to Army Flying Headquarters at Luke Field here are about to launch an aerial expedition which is expected to solve the mysteries of Kaula, the mighty rock which rears its head hundreds of feet above the Pacific some fifty miles south and west of Kaula and Niihau, of the Hawaiian group.

Plans for the experiment, which will be in the nature of a photographic mission carried out by Loening air yachts, with their base on Kauai, the "Garden island," were announced by army authorities recently.

Kaula, a rock of tremendous bulk, lifts a sheer series of cliffs on one side, while on the other an extremely heavy surf rolls in. It is said that but one living being has ever been able to effect a landing on the rock. A Hawaiian fisherman, according to the story, paddled with friends in an outrigger canoe to near the rock, leaped into a huge breaker and body-surfed ashore. How he left the tiny island is not told.

Old Boston Post Road Paved at Big Cost

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 17.—A million dollars a year is to be spent improving Boston Post Road from this city to the New York state line at Greenwich, according to John A. MacDonald, new State Highway Commissioner, who estimates the historic old road will require $135,000 per mile to put and keep it in condition for modern travel.

Probably the oldest regularly traveled road in the land, Boston Post Road has experienced everything from Indian fights of old Colonial days, through Revolutionary battles between the Colonists and the British, down to modern skirmishes between rum-runners and prohibition enforcement agents, and carries passengers and freight enough to provide serious competition for the parallel New Haven railroad.

Buy Building Materials In Glendale! Action Will Further City's Prosperity

THE business of furnishing the needed lumber supplies for the many new business buildings, apartment houses and homes that are going up in Glendale with such rapidity forms one of the city's most important industries, and the five firms engaged in this business here have enormous amounts invested in the immense stocks of lumber that they carry in their yards all through the year, and the demand for lumber caused by Glendale's growth is such that these stocks are constantly being increased.

This increase in stock means buying on a larger scale on the part of every yard in Glendale, which, in turn, means lower prices to the lumber men, who can then make better terms and lower prices to the men who are erecting the new homes and business blocks.

It may be taken as the regular rule that the newcomer to Glendale buys a site for a home as soon as he decides to remain here permanently.

Important Factor

The purchase of a home site is immediately followed by plans for building, and here the lumber dealer becomes one of the most important factors in the erection of the new home.

Established as an integral factor in the city's business life, with a definite location and an immense investment, the Glendale lumber merchant is in a position to give prompt service and he is also ready to stand behind every sale he makes, with satisfaction to the buyer as one of the cardinal principles of his business.

The question of prices to be paid by the homebuilder is an important one, and here the local lumber dealer is in a position to render valuable service. His immense volume of business means lower prices all around, and the home builder who buys through the Glendale yards can save money over what he would pay if he bought the lumber for his new home from outside points or from outside dealers, who are interested merely in "scalping" what little share they can from the local trade and who are not disposed, as a rule, to make any very great concessions to the buyers or to assume the responsibility that an established Glendale firm is willing to assume.

Payroll Helps City

The payroll that is disbursed every week through the five local lumber yards is one of the biggest financial outlays of any industry in Glendale, and practically every cent of this money is paid to people who are residents of this city and who spend their money through local trade channels, thus keeping money in circulation here and helping everyone to secure an added share of the prosperity that is Glendale's.

Co-operation of the newcomers who plan to build new homes in Glendale will mean the employment of more men in the Glendale lumber yards, more and bigger payrolls, the expenditure of more money in every store in the city, and an increased prosperity for the city and for every one of its people.

So, the newcomer—or the old resident—desirous of furthering Glendale, should remember that his duty does not stop with buying Glendale realty; it extends to patronizing Glendale industries.

MISSOURI TOWN RUN BY ONE MAN

'Nabob' Adopts Unique Canons In Dispensing Justice to Offenders

By W. F. SULLIVAN
For International News Service

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 17.—Dubbed "Chief Nabob" by a tramp he arrested several years ago, Jack O. Sturdy need never look for diversion in the performance of his daily duties.

Sturdy gained his sobriquet by the fact that in the little town of Valley Park, near here, the "Nabob" is justice of the peace, deputy sheriff, police judge, notary public, city collector and secretary of the board of education, as well as being receiver for a defunct mercantile company, trustee of a couple of estates, administrator of another estate and guardian of three minors.

Moniker Clings

Everybody in the little town hails Sturdy by his nickname since the amusing incident with the tramp. Sturdy arrested the tramp at the railroad station as deputy sheriff, took his prisoner to his office, where, as police judge, he tried him. The tramp appealed the case when the "Nabob" gave a sentence of thirty days, and Sturdy, as justice of the peace, heard and denied the appeal.

"Say," the tramp asked, "is there anything out here you ain't?"

"Yes," replied Sturdy, "I'm not the meanest man in town, and I'm going to give you eight minutes to get out of town."

"Eight minutes! Gimme my hat—and so-long and good luck, Chief Nabob!"

Sturdy likes his job fine—says it is exciting and very often amusing. He has his work systematized, and as example has established the following schedule of fines:

For chiken stealing: If in the day time, thirty days to six months, depending on the age of the defendant and the length of time he has resided in the community. First offenders get six months so they won't get in the habit. Old negroes get off with lighter sentences on the theory that they cannot break themselves of the habit.

Wife beaters: The limit, which is a year in jail and a fine of $300 or "some punishment calculated to impress upon them the gravity of their offense."

Fighting: If with the hands, $1 and costs; with feet, $2 and costs; with hands and feet, $5 and costs; hands, feet and teeth, $10 and costs; if with other weapons, $25 and costs.

Speeding: One dollar and costs for first offense; second offenders for every mile over the 25 miles an hour permitted by law, $1—added to the legal speed of 25 miles.

One-armed driving: If the couple are engaged to be married, nothing but the court's congratulations; if not engaged, $1 and costs. If one of them is married, $10 and costs; if both are married, to other persons, $25 and costs.

ELKS CIRCUS TO HOLD SURPRISES

Lodge Officers Affect Air of Mystery Over Plans For Big Event

All the preliminary pplans for the big indoor circus that is to be staged by the Glendale Elks' lodge on August 24 and 25, to raise funds to send the band to the annual state convention at Eureka next month, are rounding into shape under the earnest efforts of the officers of the lodge, and the prospects are that the members of the lodge and their friends will be treated to a two-day entertainment that will put every other previous lodge affair ever held in Glendale in the shade, according to statements made by the men who are working on the project.

Up to the present there is an air of mystery surrounding the entire affair, and no one who is not a member of the Elks' lodge can gather the meaning of the chuckles and the cryptic remarks that are passed when the men who sport the antlers foregather, but the impression is abundantly conveyed that there will be a hot time in the clubhouse for the two nights the circus is showing.

Near Breaking Point

Beyond admitting that a lot of startling features are to be put on the members of the various committees are keeping silent, working up the interest of the lodge members and outsiders to a point where it is reaching fever heat and something is liable to break if the exact information is not made public right away.

One feature that is already announced is the four boxing bouts that will form the big doings on the closing night, Saturday, August 25, when some of the best boys will be matched.

U. S. STOPS DOPE FOR PRISONERS

'Wall of Mercy' Built to Protect Inmates From Ingenious Devices

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The government has built a "wall of mercy" around all federal prisoners to shut out the blight of the hideous dope traffic, Superintendent of Prisons Votaw announced recently.

Votaw said that while some dope is still being smuggled into prisons, a recent investigation produced remedies which have greatly reduced the amount.

It was brought out by the investigation, Votaw said, that many prisoners had been coming to the penitentiaries with large supplies of dope secreted in the heels of their shoes. This practice was stopped by forcing prisoners to surrender their street shoes at the doors of their cells.

Well-organized gangs, with a wide diversity of methods of smuggling dope to prisoners, were revealed by the investigation. Dope traffickers employed the halt, the lame and oftentimes the blind to distribute their wares behind prison walls, it was shown.

The Dope Kiss

One striking instance, Votaw said, of the ingenuity evolved by prisoners in securing supplies was that of the "Dope Kiss," Peddlers visiting a dope-addicted prisoner would place a small vial of dope in a metal container in their mouths and, while kissing the prisoner through the bars, would deposit it in his mouth.

Even the most innocent-looking gifts received at prisons, from friends of inmates have been found to contain drugs upon close curiosity of guards who saw addicts chewing handkerchiefs.

Innocent babies often were made the unwitting vehicles of scrutiny, the investigation revealed. Handkerchiefs were found to have been dipped in dope and ironed while moist, giving them the appearance of new, and sent to addicts in prisons. The discovery of this form of smuggling was brought about by the dope peddlers, it was found. Peddlers secreted "stuff" in the clothes of infants who were being taken to visit their "fathers," and the dope was later transferred to prisoners during the visit.

Guards Commended

Votaw commended the work of prison guards at federal penitentiaries. He said that while numerous cases had come to his notice of guards supplying prisoners with drugs, they do not represent the loyal and conscientious majority of prison guards, who faithfully perform hazardous duties at small salaries.

"When the fact is realized," he added, "that at the Atlantic Penitentiary, as an instance, 2000 prisoners are incarcerated and the personnel of the prison is only ernment has been able to cope 100 it is marvelous that the gov-with the drug evil as well as it has. We have now a splendid system of checking up on all material and visitors received at prisons, but even with the most stringent regulations in force some 'dope' still slips in."

Votaw added that while the war, being waged on dope smuggling into federal prisons has been progressing very satisfactorily, efforts will not be relaxed until it will be impossible for even the smallest quantity to enter prisons and that every facility at the government's command will be used to that end.

SPEEDY U. S. SEAPLANE ENTERED IN CUP RACES

World's Fastest Hydroplane Expected To Capture British Trophy

U. S. N. hydroplane D-12, world's fastest seaplane. Inset, left, Lieut. Rutledge Irvine, who piloted the craft, and, right, Lieut. David Rittenhouse, who, with Irvine, will handle the craft in the Schneider cup races in England.

Chances of the United States to cop the seaplane speed events in the coming Schneider cup races in England were enhanced when Lieut. Rutledge Irvine drove the navy hydroplane D-12 one hundred and seventy-five and three tenths miles an hour off Long Island recently. The old record was 146 miles an hour made at the Schneider cup races last year by a British aviator. Lieutenants Irvine and David Rittenhouse will pilot the speed plane in the races this year. England, France, Italy and Spain also will compete, according to word from abroad.

Coal Dust Used as Tint for Fair Eyelids

LONDON, Aug. 17.—Coal dust powder, especially prepared, is woman's latest accessory for making herself beautiful.

The new preparation is placed round the eyes in such a way that it enhances the whites of the orbs, giving it a milky and filmy effect.

It is stated to suit all colors of eyes except blue, as the coal dust in this case detracts from their color.

Magnificent shades of orange rouge, which, when placed on the face gives it the effect of sunset color, are now fashionable, and several shades of blue, which vary in hue from the color of the cornflower to the mauve of lilac, are being uses to tint the upper lids of the eyes.

RELIGION CURES WORRY, IS CLAIM

Pastor Says Animals Not Capable of Worrying; Is Human Faiing

COLUMBUS, Aug. 17—"Worry is a human characteristic," asserted Rev. A. W. Blackwood, local Presbyterian pastor, sermonizing on "Heart's Ease; God's Cure for Worry." The cure for worry, he said, "is divine."

"God doesn't need to worry. Animals are not capable of it. Therefore, its causes must be human," continued Rev. Dr. Blackwood. "The cure for worry is in religion. The only thing to do with God is to accept him and not worry about him. Your usefulness, your goodness, your happiness, depend on your freedom from worry. Heart's ease is almost the best gift of God. It is to be had for the asking.

"Worry is the most common disease. But, even if we worry, it's much better to do something and then fret over it than to do nothing and be at peace," said Rev. Dr. Blackwood. "The five occasions for worry are: Money, health, family, the church and the nation.

"Men worry about the money they have, but the money really has them. They worry about the money they had and lost; about the money they should have and haven't. One reason they didn't get it is because they worried about it. As for health, the best way to lose it is to worry about it. A lot of us try to do too much, when our health won't permit. Church people worry about religious affairs. The liberals are worried over the conservatives, the conservatives over the liberals, and the rest of us are worried lest their bickerings destroy the church."

DAVID DONWELL GONE FROM CITY

Reported to Have Taken Large Amount of Money; Friends Worried

proved with a one-story brick store. Donwell received a certain amount of cash on this building, for which it is understood $30,000 was the total consideration. After handing over the encumbrance to the buyer, he took back a $9000 trust deed on a piece of property elsewhere in Glendale, discounting this latter heavily, receiving $6000 cash for it. Mr. Donwell then took a three-year lease on the property.

Owes Twenty Creditors

It is known that he cleaned out his bank account before he left, and that he allowed many bills and payments to become delinquent. One creditor alone is owed over $2400 by the Premium Public Market, according to the receiver. In all, there are about twenty creditors. They have instituted a search for the missing man.

It is also known that Donwell contemplated opening a grocery business in Barstow and had a deal pending to build a store and hotel there. When he left Glendale on the morning of August 7, it was with the view of closing up a deal on some lots there, claims Raymond Bowen, his son-in-law.

Advance Murder Theory

When it is considered that Mr. Donwell set out for Barstow with a large sum of bills on his person, totaling a minimum of $10,000 and perhaps nearer $20,000, it is easy to believe that he might have been held up and robbed, even murdered. It is also easy to believe that he might have become temporarily deranged.

To one man alone, a Los Angeles merchant, who had recently run a business in Glendale that failed, Mr. Donwell had extended a $400 credit, against good advice. It is known that he visited this man just before his disappearance, in an effort to collect the money, and that, failing to do so, he made another appointment with him for one day last week. Mrs. Donwell has made several efforts to communicate with this man, whose name is at present withheld, but she has been unsuccessful.

When it was learned that Donwell was missing and his affairs in a precarious state, attachments were brought and at a meeting of the creditors, held August 14, in the offices of the Los Angeles Wholesalers' Board of Trade, it was decided that in the absence of the proprietor, no assignment being possible, the only thing for all concerned would be to file a petition of involuntary bankruptcy. This was done and William H. Moore, Jr., was appointed receiver.

Mrs. Donwell was represented at this meeting by her attorney, Bert P. Woodard, who is looking after all her affairs. Mr. Woodard has filed a homestead claim for her on her residence at 718 East Raleigh street.

Show Beauties Grow Scarce In England

LONDON, Aug. 17.—England is considerably worried about the beautiful chorus girl.

Beauty seems to be boycotting the stage in England.

Andre Charlot, who is producing a revue for the American stage, has interviewed more than a thousand girls who aspire to be beautiful chorines, but only five of them have satisfied him that their charms will be equal to American demands.

Edgar Selwyn, American producer, comes out boldly and says that English beauty has vanished and then hastens to explain that it has vanished only from the stage.

"The pretty girls have certainly disappeared," said Selwyn, "but only from the stage.

"You can see them any day in the street, working in the shops and in the theatre audiences, but not on the stage.

"I have been to most of the musical shows in town, but every time I have been disappointed.

"You haven't the representative English girl, dainty and with that delicate charm that was the great attraction of the stage girls of some years ago.

"The girls you see are clever enough at their work, but, with exceptions, they are not typically English. The freshness and the delicacy of charm are not there.

"The type still exists. It has only vanished from the stage."

City Controller Reports On Reserve Fund; Cannot Be Used For 'Reducing Taxes'

HARRY C. SAULSBERRY, city controller, at the request of the City Council, prepared a statement relative to the city's reserve fund, which he submitted to the council last night, showing that on July 1 the city had $80,524.23 on hand. This fund, it was pointed out by councilmen last night, must be replenished each fiscal year and cannot, as some citizens claim, be used to "reduce taxes."

During a discussion of municipal finances last night, Councilman Sam Davis took occasion to answer a statement in a newspaper in which it was claimed that the city had about $111,000 on hand and that this sum could be applied in municipal affairs so that taxes might be reduced. Councilman Davis took issue with the writer of the article and Councilmen Asa Hall, W. A. Horn and C. E. Kimlin agreed that the writer was in error in some of his statements.

"I'm tired of seeing this sort of stuff in print," said Councilman Davis, "and from now on I'm going to fight back under free-for-all rules. The article was written by a man who has proven his ignorance of the city's financial affairs; it's a crime to let such stuff get before the public, some of whom may believe what they see in the paper."

Councilman Davis made a number of other remarks concerning the article and, too, declared that "taxes will not be 'materially reduced'; this council has had really nothing much to do with making a smaller tax rate and the fact that our valuations are raised does not mean the council did it. Any newspaper statement to the effect that this council is 'materially reducing taxes' is 'all the bunk.' And it's put forth for political purposes."

Councilman Davis made it clear that he is for saving money and making a dollar do its full work, but he also made it plain that he is opposed to having facts and figures twisted into political propaganda. He declared that if any attempt is made to publish incorrect statements concerning the tax rate and the city's reserve fund he will challenge the author of the article to a public debate. He continued:

"Of course, I'm for low taxes. The fact that our valuations have been increased about $10,000,000 is responsible for the lower rate. I consider that the city is in good financial shape. The reserve fund, provided for by the charter, has helped us conduct city business. And that fund must be replenished, no matter what the newspaper financial 'authority' has to say." To which the other councilmen agreed.

Controller Saulsberry's statement in full follows:

Glendale, California, August 9, 1923.

Honorable City Council:

Gentlemen: Complying with your minute order of August 6th, I wish to advise that the total delinquent taxes received from the County of Los Angeles during the fiscal year, 1922-1923, exclusive of interest and penalties abount to $6,546.92.

Denver Bank Bandit Foiled in Bold Theft

DENVER, Aug. 17.—Roy McCoy, giving his home address as Athens, Ohio, failed today in a desperate attempt to hold up the Union State bank.

Entering the bank he presented a torn dollar bill to the cashier, asking him to exchange it for a new one. As the cashier started to make the exchange, McCoy stuck a .45-caliber revolver through the window, ordering the cashier to hand over $340 that was lying on the counter.

McCoy secured the money, ran from the bank and jumped on to an express truck, ordering the driver to "step on it." The driver, after going two blocks, succeeded in overpowering McCoy. He was arrested and the money recovered.

SERIOUSLY INJURED

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 17.—Driving his automobile into an open gas ditch at Twenty-second street and Vernon Ave. today, Ray Miller, received injuries that may prove fatal, police surgeons said.

FLOOD SWEEPING COLORADO FARMS

Residents Flee to Safety as Cloudburst in Canyon Menaces Homes

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 17.—Lowland farms near Denver, Valverde, Littleton and Jerome Park were inundated with flood waters of the Platte River this morning, and residents of these places were fleeing to higher grounds for safety.

A cloudburst in the Platte Canyon late last night caused the stream to rise to flood proportions, equalling that of 1922 which caused loss of several lives. Southwest of Littleton all telephone communication was cut off.

Railroad tracks of the Colorado & Southern between Foxton and Buffalo were reported washed out in thirty places. Residents in the Platte River bottom in and near Denver were warned by police to seek higher ground.

Basements were filled with water, homes marooned and several blocks partly under water in Valverde and Jerome Park. The flood reached its peak around midnight, and gradually receded from then on.

Most of the damage done by the flood was caused near the mouth of the Platte.

Up to an early hour this morning, there had been no reports of any lives being lost.

Sheriff's Slayer Dies In Fight With Police

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 17.—Edward Rust, who escaped handcuffed from a train near Moorehead, Minn., July 2, after seizing the gun of and killing Sheriff I. C. Fulkner of Aberdeen, S. D., was shot dead by St. Paul police after a gun battle this morning.

He was killed after being cornered by a police gun squad in a room at 2111 Dayton avenue, St. Paul. He fired two shots at two police detectives who battered down the door, but was riddled with bullets a moment later.

Without knowing they had the murderer for whom peace officers throughout the north have searched for two months, police at 9 o'clock last night had Rust under arrest under the name of Peter Carson, wanted for automobile stealing.

He was arrested with Sigfrid Larson, a young woman with whom he has been associating for some weeks, while riding in a stolen car. He was handcuffed, but while being taken to jail leaped from the car and escaped in the dark amid a barrage of revolver shots, from the police.

At headquarters the woman identified a picture of Rust as her companion. She volunteered her aid and accompanied a gun squad which worked all night on the trail, which led fimally to the Dayton Avenue room and Rust's slaying.

Film Star Recovers Effects of Accident

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 16.—Mabel Normand, film star, who suffered a broken shoulder and other painful injuries ten days ago, when she was thrown from a horse at Coronado when the animal became unmanageable upon being started toward the surf, was reported "as being well." The shoulder has been reset but she is said to have stood the ordeal unusually well. She is confined in a local hospital.

Horns of male deer are shed every year, the two dropping off a few hours apart.

Impressive Services Mark Miners' Burial

KEMMERER, Wyo., Aug. 17.—Kemmerer's great grief centered in the public park of the stricken town today when hundreds of mourners, friends and fellow citizens of the ninety-nine victims of the Frontier Mine No. 1, of the Kemmerer Coal company, paid homage to their departed dead. It was one of the most impressive ceremonies ever held in the state of Wyoming. The three sides of the small triangular park, with an American flag flying at half-mast in the exact enter, were lined with caskets containing nearly seventy-five bodies. Within the fenced area were virtually the entire population of Kemmerer and scores of visitors from the surrounding mining camps.

A hushed silence fell over the throng as Rev. P. H. Szymanski, pastor of the Catholic church, arose to offer prayer. Bishop Jensen of the Mormon church read a lesson from the Scriptures, and the Rev. Thomas Evans, Methodist minister, delivered a touching address of sympathy to the widows and children of the dead miners.

Women Leap to Death Under Spell of Grief

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Despondent, it is said, since the death of their husband and father, Mrs. A. M. Stern, 60, and her daughter, 35, leaped to death today from the roof of the seven-story apartment house on the upper West Side.

The two women, with hands clasped, poised for a moment on the coping of the window, then, with a scream leaped.

Who Named Glendale? Why? History Isn't Clear Regarding Subject Intriguing Newcomers

By GIL A. COWAN

WHERE did Glendale get its name? That is a question that intrigues almost everyone now that this city is writing history for Southern California. A wise cracking wag told a newcomer the other day that two of its most important industries were responsible. "The name is really 'Gland-ale,' said this humorous son of Ananias. "The town became famous the last few years for the manufacture of gland tablets and ginger ale, so the native hitched 'em together artistically to make a suitable name. That's the derivative 'gland-ale.'"

Dr. Henry R. Harrower, world-wide authority on glandular therapy, whose laboratory here turns out the tablets by the millions, denies the story, while F. J. W. Henry of Sierra Club gingerale fame admits he put the ale in Glendale. Which complicates matters in revealing the true history of the city.

What History Reveals

The one source of information in matters such as these is the "History of Glendale and Vicinity" by J. C. Sherer, city treasurer. According to his collaborators, a meeting was held in the Verdugo road school house in 1884 by the inhabitants of the valley, and, during their consideration of a site for a cemetery the matter of naming the community was taken up by the pioneers. Glendale was selected.

However, there were other "Glendales' in the state at the time, and the postal authorities insisted on christening the place "Mason." The Southern Pacific railroad called it "Sepulveda," and

DUAL SESSIONS FOR H. S. PUPILS

Juniors and Seniors Will Attend Mornings; Others During Afternoons

A double session at Glendale Union High school will feature the first half of the coming school year, according to Principal George U. Moyse, who has his assistants, Mrs. Ethel Hume Flood Moyse and A. L. Ferguson busy preparing the "program."

The course of study has grown to be a complicated matter and the double session makes it twice as hard to untangle, according to Mr. Ferguson. It means to separate sets of pupils, a mid-day day change of faculty and students which, no doubt, will be nothing short of an Irish picnic.

Work in Two Shifts

It is the intention to have the junior and senior classes begin at 7:30 a. m. and continue through to 12:55 while the freshmen and sophomores will ar-

Professor Cookman Writes About Bird Life Found On Playa Del Rey Marsh

By ALFRED COOKMAN, M. S.
Written for The Glendale Evening News

STUDY of bird life on a southern California marsh is told in the following story from the pen of Prof. Alfred Cookman, Glendale resident and scientist. Prof. Cookman, who has made a wide study of birds, has a very valuable collection and the trip he describes was made to secure additions.

Last Monday afternoon, my assistant, Marvin Creager of Glendale, and the writer motored down to "Utter's Marsh," near Playa del Rey, Los Angeles county, Southern California, to observe the birds feeding among the tules and the reeds and on the mud flats at low tide. We left Los Angeles at noon and arrived at the edge of the slough at 1:15 p. m. Parking the machine about a half mile southwest of the car tracks, and with our guns, kodaks, field glasses and taxidermy materials we approached the area at an angle, crouching low to the ground so that the birds would not detect our approach and rise quickly and soar away to the opposite side of the slough, or go hurtling up the lake toward the willows and poplar trees.

Perfect Setting

The day was perfect. The sun was at our back. The air was invigorating. The sky was pale blue, with a few cumulus clouds soaring over the top of Mt. Wilson and Mt. Lowe and "Old Baldy." The birds were there in countless numbers. The mud flats to the left were alive with sand-pipers, sanderlings, snowy plovers, phalaropes and gulls. The little shore birds were racing here and there, probing the wet mud with their long, slender bills for insect life, crustacea, mollusks and worms. The plaintive notes of the killdeer plover announced our arrival and the birds ceased feeding and stood crouching and very still. Only the soaring gulls and least terns seemed aware of our intrusion, and this little killdeer plover.

"Down!" I cried to my friends, and we dropped on our stomachs in the salicornia grass in the field adjoining the slough. A small flock of western sandpipers observed the quick action and rose in a cloud, but they came down very suddenly and joined their cousins, the least and red-backed sandpipers. The saucy killdeer raced over to the pond and then turned around and ran back to where we were hidden, only to turn sharply and utter his characteristic cry and return to the flock of sandpipers on the bar.

Recognize Many

We worked our way slowly toward the edge of the marsh. Fortunately, the birds did not startle and soar away. We were able to recognize fourteen species and watch them in the act of securing food. Some were chasing each other round and around as if at play. Each bird had a duty to perform. Their interest was direct and personal. The sandpipers would race here and there, probing the wet mud with their slender bills, first to the right and then to the left, and now and then in front, straight down in the black ooze. They would wheel around and advance in the opposite direction with surprising quickness, always leaning forward and their little slender legs moving with great rapidity, so that they appeared as a mere haze under their well-built little bodies. The snowy plover, the sanderlings and the northern phalaropes were hurrying here and there over the brackish, sun-baked mud flats above the tide-water mark. It was very difficult to follow them from our place of concealment without startling the great horde of shore birds on the mud flats in front of us. Hundreds of western, California and ring-billed gulls were resting on a mud bar in East Marsh, about fifty yards out in the center of the lake. They were easily identified with the field-glass. Most of them were facing the setting sun in the late afternoon.

Close Range Study

There were birds of the year, or young gulls, and also second-year birds with plumage changing from the dull, streaked brown, white and black of the bird of the year to the advancing mottled coloration of head, back and sides of the second year bird. Several adults were present, in their maximum coloration—white, pearl or slate-color mantle and striking features of bills and feet. We were in a position to study seagulls in the act of soaring, parading, resting, fighting and eating waste washed in with the tide. A gull in flight is grace personified. Black and white and grays in Nature's hand are never other than badges of distinction and refinement.

The beautiful avocet attracted our attention. Several were seen on the opposite shore. The avocet is a queer-looking wader. They have long, slender legs, beautiful plumage with cinnamon on head and neck, white underparts, black on wings and a recurved bill turned upward. They average seventeen inches from the end of the bill to the tip of the tail. They wade out into the marsh for quite a distance and then sweep their recurved bill about in the mud on the bottom of the slough, finding an abundance of food. They raise their heads out of the water to swallow it.

Adds to Collection

The writer took several birds for his collection. An examination of the stomach contents of the sandpipers and snowy plovers showed that they were feeding almost wholly upon insect life. In fact, fully 90 per cent of the food of our shore birds is largely insects. This fact makes them invaluable to those who dwell near the waterways as well as to the agriculturist. Most shore birds are small, slender-legged waders. They are among the smallest of the seafaring migrants. They possess three toes and do not swim. They are marvelously adapted for long aerial voyages and their body is marvelously built for endurance—endurance of cold, hunger, wind and storm. They are destined to be the true ocean waifs, traveling alone or in flocks hither and yon, always songless and sometimes they are voiceless, with eyes seldom closing in sleep, and with wings seldom folding in rest. It seems to the

IDEAL VACATION SPENT AT TAHOE

Realtor Boosts Glendale on Trip Through Northern Part of State

Lake Tahoe and Lake county proved ideal vacation land for Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Schuyler, their daughter Miss Lois, their two sons Ernest and Hoyt of 330 West Ivy street, and their friends, Miss Louise Kelly of Salt Lake and Thurston Harshman of this city. A trip covering a distance of 2000 miles through the greatest state in the union, California, proved beyond a doubt that "See America First" should be changed to "See California First." A variety of environments were furnished including ocean, mountain, lake, desert, and mines.

Leaving Glendale Monday morning, July 30, the party arrived at Lake Tahoe Friday noon. A stopover was made at Pacific Beach for one day with Mrs. Katherine Souy of this city. Lake Tahoe lived up to expectations built up by hearsay in our minds. A span of water 25 miles long and 12 miles wide located in a pocket of the High Sierras, with the California-Nevada line dividing it, is the geographical description of Lake Tahoe, but this far from describes the most beautiful lake in America. Traveling its edge by auto one was able to secure a greater idea of the handiwork of Mother Nature. Points of special interest were Cave Rock, Emerald Bay, Tallac and Bijou Camp, the last named point being the headquarters of the Schuyler party.

See Nevada Mines

During the stay at Lake Tahoe, a one-day trip was made to Carson City, Virginia City, and Reno, Nev. Old school chums of the Schuylers, Mr. and Mrs. Garret of Carson City, but soon of Glendale, made the trip with them. Several mines were visited. Virginia City, an old mining town, was very interesting mainly because of its historical connection with the gold rush days of '49.

From Tahoe, the Schuyler party proceeded to Lake County and Clear Lake where a four-day visit was made with Mrs. Schuyler's brother's family, Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt. This section of California is called "The Switzerland of America" and it certainly lives up to its name. It is noted for having many hot springs, which are the wonder of visitors. Clear Lake itself furnishes an excellent place for bathing and as many opportunities were afforded, they were not ignored. For several days after leaving, Mr. Schuyler complained of having a "sore-head"—the result of sunburn.

On the way home both the University of California and Leland Stanford university were visited. Arriving in Glendale nearly three weeks after the start was made, every member of the party felt beyond a doubt that, despite the beauty spots visited and despite the chatter of home-town folk bespeaking the charms of their particular homes, Glendale was the ideal home city of our great land. This fact was made known every inch of the way by Mr. Schuyler, who is a local realtor.

Veteran Texas Ranger, Old Soldier, Traveler, Scholar Makes Glendale His Home

By KATHERINE VIRGINIA SINKS
Of The Evening News Staff

GLENDALE has adopted John Edward Oldright, for over fifty years a prominent resident of Austin, Texas, veteran Texas ranger, veteran of the Confederate army, captain of light artillery in the Texas state guard, bank clerk, internal revenue officer, scholar and traveler, and, because he celebrated his 87th birthday July 28, he is enrolled today as a member of The Glendale Evening News Sunset club.

And in adopting Mr. Oldright, the city of Glendale claims his wife, Mrs. Oldright, both guests at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital on East Broadway. While some ten years too young to become a member of the Sunset club, Mrs. Oldright is greatly interested in the club organization and the possibility of a club meeting.

Born at Gibraltar

John Edward Oldright first saw the light of day on the Rock of Gibraltar, where he was born under the English flag in 1836, when his father, Major John Oldright, was serving in Her Majesty's Eighty-first regiment.

He was the fourth of seven children, a family of unusual interest, for they were all born in foreign countries, where their father saw army service.

Upon the father's retirement from the army the family settled in Canada and Mr. Oldright's recollection of the Canada of those days is very interesting.

"Until I was three years of age my family lived in Gibraltar," relates Mr. Oldright, "then we went to the West Indies and from there we went to Quebec. Ocean travel in those days was a very different experience from what it is today. Instead of the palatial liners there were crude sailing ships and the privations were many and the food often consisted of salt pork or salted beef. Coming from the West Indies to Quebec the boat we were on was becalmed on the banks of Newfoundland and we experienced a water shortage. I remember sailing up the St. Lawrence river and of the people on the boats letting buckets down in the water until we finally reached the fresh water.

Not Much Railroad

"At that time, in 1843, Canada was Canada East and Canada West. There were no settlements except on the lake shore and the St. Lawrence river. There

TODAY—English Version of Jazz; American Players Leave; All-Night Parliament.

TOMORROW—Some New York Side Lights

By DAVID M. CHURCH,
For International News Service

LONDON, Aug. 17—Dance-mad London has to rely on "home-made jazz" these days, and there is much wailing.

"Beastly awful, isn't it?" wails "Burlington Bertie."

"Rahthurr," replies "Piccadilly Polly," as they languish in their night club, while the British leader of a British jazz orchestra slowly moans, "Yosh, We 'ave NO Bahnahnahs."

The reason for all this grief is that the American jazz-masters have scurried back to America. There are a few American jazz bands left in London, but the "Jazz Kings" have folded their tents and silently stolen away.

Paul Whiteman, who played to suit the Prince of Wales, closed his engagement on July 21, but generously devoted his final days in London to instructing an English band, which is striving to take the place of the American "tooters" in the Hippodrome Revue. Whiteman's success was meteoric in England, and he had the satisfaction of creating jazz for most of the titled and royal dancers of the Empire. Now he is only a memory, and "Burlington Bertie" and "Piccadilly Polly" are full of grief.

The departure of the American jazz bands comes at an inopportune time, too, because the London County Council has just let down the Puritanical bars and permits dancing every night in the week until 2 a. m. No wonder there is disappointment for those who love to dance and have to tolerate the Anglicized version, "Yosh, We 'Ave NO Bahnahnahs."

Speaking of the late dancing, Commons is getting the all-night habit. Members of the House who live in the suburbs are up in arms at the obstructionst methods which have frequently been adopted by Laborites to keep Parliament in session until the wee small hours. When the House sits after 12:30 at night it means that those members who do not live in London are without means of transportation, and they either have to wander about the streets or sleep on the hard benches of Westminster.

Colonel Buckley, secretary for the Overseas Trade Department, speaking recently, declared that an alliance between Great Britain and the United States, the two most powerful nations, would give the world what he feared the League of Nations would not give for a long time.

Thomas George Boulden, Registrar of Devonport, is the world's champion "splicer." Boulden, who is retiring after forty years of service, has the proud distinction of having joined no less than 15,000 couples in matrimony. He refuses to estimate how many of the marriages have been successful, but admits that he has traveled all over the British Isles to act as a witness in bigamy and divorce cases.

Americans are taking to England's fashionable "sport" with great gusto. The Scottish grouse preserves will be full of Americans this year, who, emulating King George, will spend long, rainy days sitting in hidden boxes, while beaters chase the grouse before them so that the sportsmen may shoot them down. It is estimated that the cost of shooting grouse is about five dollars a brace. Rather expensive sport, if it be sport.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— BY HOWARD R. GARIS —

UNCLE WIGGILY AND JOHNNIE'S PATCH

Uncle Wiggily was hopping along the forest paths of Woodland one day, when he drew near to the little house in which lived the Bushytail family of squirrels. In front of the house stood Bobby Ringtail, the little raccoon boy.

"Whoo-oo! Whoo-oo!" called Bobby, switching around his tail with the rings of fur on it. "Whoo-oo! Come on out and play, Billie and Johnnie!"

The door of the squirrel house opened, and out scampered Billie Bushytail.

"I'll come and play with you, Bobby," was what Uncle Wiggily heard Billie say.

"Where's your brother Johnnie?" asked the little raccoon boy.

"Oh, Johnnie can't come out," answered Billie.

"Why not?"

"'Cause he's got a big hole in his trousers, and his bare leg shows and he says he isn't going to come out like that and have all the girl animals laughing at him," chattered Billie.

"But why doesn't your mother sew a patch on Johnnie's trousers?" Bobby wanted to know. "If she'd sew a patch on he could come out and have some fun with us."

"Mother isn't home," answered Billie, "and neither Johnnie nor I can sew patches."

"Ha! Perhaps this is where I can help," kindly offered Uncle Wiggily, hopping up with his pink nose twinkling. "I can sew a little bit, Billie. And if you can find a needle and thread and a patch of cloth I'll mend the hole in Johnnie's trousers the same as I mended a hole in Nurse Jane's leaky pan. Then you boys can play and have fun."

"Oh, I guess you can find needles, pins, thread and patches in mother's sewing basket," said Billie.

"Please come in and do it," begged Johnnie, who stood in the open window, sticking out his head. He didn't dare come out any farther on account of the hole in his trousers where his bare leg showed.

"All right," offered the bunny gentleman. "I'll put a patch on Johnnie's trousers."

The little boy squirrel crawled into bed, after taking off his trousers so that Uncle Wiggily would mend them. Of course Johnnie had another pair of trousers, but they were his Sunday ones, and he didn't want to wear them to play out in the dirt.

Uncle Wiggily found a needle, thread and a piece of cloth to put on as a patch over the hole in the little squirrel boy's trousers. The bunny pushed the needle in and out, the long thread following after, like the stylish train on the bride's gown.

"There you are, Johnnie," said Mr. Longears after a while. "Your trousers are mended. Put them on and run out to play."

Johnnie scrambled out of bed and slipped on his trousers. He couldn't see the patch very well as it was on the back part of his clothes—where he used to slide down cellar doors, I suppose.

"Does my leg show?" he asked.

"Not a bit," answered Uncle Wiggily. "It isn't exactly what you would call a fancy patch, and perhaps some of the stitches are longer than others, but it does very well, I think."

"It's fine!" chattered Johnnie. "I don't feel any cold air coming in on my leg now. Come on, Billie and Bobby. We'll go play!" he called. And then, as Uncle Wiggily seemed lonesome, the animal boys invited him to come with them. Right gladly the bunny went.

Uncle Wiggily and the animal boys were crossing a field when, all of a sudden, a big bull ran at them, bellowing, pawing the earth and shaking his head.

"Run! Run!" cried Billie.

"Run! Run!" cried Billie, and they all ran to climb over the fence. But before Johnnie could climb over the bull reached the little squirrel chap and tossed him over. Luckily, however, Johnnie landed on a soft pile of dried leaves and wasn't hurt at all.

"Boo! Boo!" bellowed the Bull. "I don't want to hurt any one, but you mustn't come in my field with anything red on."

"Who has any red?" asked Bobby.

"Oh, I just remember now!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "I sewed a red patch on Johnnie's trousers. It was all the cloth I could find. I never thought we'd meet a bull. Oh, Johnnie, I'm so sorry!"

"Oh, well, I'm not hurt!" laughed the squirrel boy. "It was fun. And if I keep out of the Bull's field the red patch won't matter."

And it didn't, for they met no more Bulls, nor Turkey Gobblers, who, it seems, don't like red either. Uncle Wiggily and the animal boys had a good time. And when Mrs. Bushytail reached home that night she sewed a black patch in place of the red one on Johnnie's trousers.

So it all happened for the best. And if the window shutter doesn't bang the side of the house and give the comb a pain in its teeth I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the soap.

BILLY WHISKERS

By FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY

In yesterday's story some of the boys of the Hooligan gang who had been tormenting Billy Whiskers were up on a rickety shed.

Billy backed off to get a good running start, and the boys, not knowing what his plan was, laughed, jeered and made faces at him.

When Nannie saw them do this, she thought to herself, "Now they have made faces at him, Billy will show them no mercy, for he hates to have faces made at him as much as people do.

Crash! Bang! Two butts in succession and the old shed was a wreck of ruins, with three boys kicking and squirming to get from under the falling timbers. Billy was climbing up its fallen sides to reach the boys and give them a butt or two, but when they saw him they ran for their homes lickety split.

And now Billy had to look out for himself, for when the fat washwoman to whom the shed belonged saw Billy trying to butt it down she grabbed a broom and ran after him, followed by a whole flock of children and two or three of her neighbors.

On came the fat woman with broom fearlessly raised to strike Billy, never doubting that she would scare the goat away. And she was much surprised to see him coming on toward her instead of running away, and still more surprised when Billy dodged her broom as she tried to hit him and gave her a shove that landed her in a tub of soapsuds, where she lay screaming and kicking. Her neighbors, on seeing this, grabbed their children and fled for safety. When Billy gazed about, he found not a person was to be seen outside the shanties, but at every window were two or three faces peeping out at the terribly cross goat.

The bridge man and his wife were holding their sides with laughter, for they disliked the fat laundress Billy had butted, and they hated all the Hooligan gang. So it did them good to see Billy getting the best of them.

"It sure did me eyes good the way that Billy goat got after thim rascally Hooligans, and it would have made you sick wid laughin' to see the fat Mrs. Penney a kickin' up av her heels as she lay stuck in her own wash tub," said Mrs. McDermott to a friend that afternoon when she dropped in to have a cup of tea with her, and tell her all the exciting news, as was her neighborly custom.

(Tomorrow you will want to know if the Hooligans tried to get even with Billy.)

POEMS THAT LIVE

FOR LACK OF GOLD

For lack of gold she's left me, O,
And of all that's dear bereft me, O;
She me forsook for Athole's duke,
And to endless woe she has left me, O.
A star and a garter have more art
Than youth, a true and faithful heart;
For empty titles we must part,
And for glittering gold she's left me, O.

No cruel fair shall ever move
My injured heart again to love;
Through distant climes I must rove,
Since Jeanie has left me, O.
Ye powers above, I to your care
Give up my faithless, lovely fair;
Your choicest blessings be her share,
Though she's for ever left me, O!

RADIO

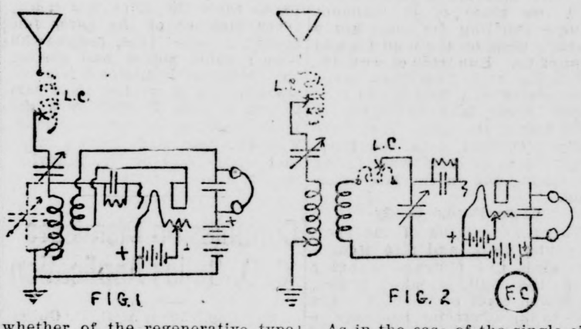
HOW TO LOAD YOUR SET FOR HIGHER WAVE LENGTHS

Ever since May 15th when the change in wave lengths was put into effect, radio fans whose sets were designed for the 360-400 meter wave have not been getting the stations who have been allotted a longer wave length and in not getting them, they have been missing some mighty good programs.

Loading your set is not a difficult undertaking and most any set can be loaded unless it is one of the freak circuits that work on a combination of certain capacities and inductances.

If you have a single circuit set, signals than the variable condenser, but requires quite a lot of space, although it could be mounted on the outside, and in the back of the set. These changes are shown in Figure 1.

If you have a double circuit, tuner it will be necessary to load both the primary and secondary circuits. For broadcasting, this can be done with the use of condensers. If you are now using 23 plate or .0005 microfarad capacity condenser, the substitution of a 43 plate or .001 microfarad condenser will, in most cases, bring your wave length up high enough.



whether of the regenerative type or not, in most cases it can be loaded so as to tune to the new wave lengths by merely connecting a fixed condenser or either .0005 or .001 microfarad capacity across the aerial and ground binding posts. A variable condenser will be better for out of town work. If a variable condenser is used it is suggested that a table type be purchased as then it will not be necessary to mount it in your panel, which, no doubt, is just large enough to hold the parts already in use.

If you desire to tune to higher wave lengths (higher than for broadcasting) it is suggested that a loading coil be used and connected in series with the aerial and primary coil. A loading coil can be made up of a cardboard tube soaked in hot paraffin to exclude moisture, and wound with number 22 or 24 cotton covered wire and tapped every twenty turns. A loading coil will give stronger

As in the case of the single circuit set, loading coils will give better results but are bulky. To get away from bulkiness it is suggested that concentrated inductances, such as duo-lateral or honeycomb coils be used, and mounted so they can be changed for various wave lengths. This type is much more efficient than a loading coil with its dead-end losses.

If you are using a three circuit set it will be advantageous to load the tickler coil too. If this is not done, full advantage of regeneration cannot be obtained.

There are more single circuit receivers in use today than any of the other types, so the quickest way to change the average set is by the use of a fixed condenser across the aerial and ground binding posts. This small change in your set will allow you to get some mighty good programs that you are missing, as most of the large stations have shifted to a higher wave length. The large stations naturally have the better programs and that is what we all want.

Loading coils in a two circuit set are shown in Figure 2. This holds true of the three circuit set too, the difference being a plate inductance.

Pointers

When you charge your storage battery, also put pure distilled water in it.

Broadcasting stations like to hear from you regarding their programs, whether it is a knock or a boost.

A portable set should have the batteries in the cabinet.

CHARLES W. PUGSLEY

The department of agriculture recently lost one of its most experienced experts on farm management, when Charles W. Pugsley of Lincoln, Neb., for several years an assistant secretary of agriculture, presented his resignation to Secretary Wallace in order to assume the presidency of the South Dakota College of Agriculture and Mechanical Arts. His resignation was regretfully accepted, and he will assume his new duties on September 30.

CHAS PUGSLEY

He was born in Woodbine, Ia., in 1878, and is a graduate of the Woodbine Normal school and the University of Nebraska. He began his career as a teacher in the Woodbine Normal school and afterward taught animal husbandry at the University of Nebraska. Later he became teacher and dean of the department of farm management at Nebraska. He was state statistician of agriculture and state leader in demonstration and boys' and girls' work for several years.

Mr. Pugsley joined the department of agriculture and was the United States delegate to the International Institute of Agriculture in 1914. He is a director of the National Corn association and is chairman of the standing committee on extension work of the American Association of Agricultural Colleges and Exports. He is the author of many articles on research and agricultural subjects.

AFRICAN PALM OIL

Oils derived from the West African oil palm are believed to have more uses than those from any other vegetable source.

Rattlesnakes produce from 25 to 45 young in a litter and they attain maturity in one year.

Paul Rieger, District Governor Of Rotary International, Pays Visit To Luncheon Club Here

GLENDALE Rotarians yesterday afternoon accorded Paul Rieger, district governor of Rotary International, a most cordial reception. He is a perfumer, "the scenter of America," as he says, with a great business at San Francisco, and he is in the Southland for the presentation of a charter to the Huntington Beach Rotary Club Friday night. He has served as president of the San Francisco club and gave some good advice to the local membership.

Rotary is the builder of friendship, confidence and leadership, was one of the big points in his talk in which he described the growth or the organization from onelone club in Chicago until the association now spreads to Singapore, New Zealand, Australia, the European continental counries, Canada, South America and various islands.

A member of the reparations commission from Amsterdam told Mr. Rieger recently that "Rotary is the greatest movement in Holland in 100 years." In closing he quoted President Guy Gundaker's toast to Rotary which looks forward to the accomplishment of world peace.

Plea For Service

"As I visit the different clubs I wonder what it means to them collectively and also what it means to the individual membership. I know there are the men who 'just belong,' but the big idea is 'doing to other people as you would have them do unto you', or in other words, 'to place service above self'."

Francis J. W. Henry led the local club in numerous songs during the luncheon which was served by the Glen Inn in the Chamber of Commerce banquet hall. George B. Karr, president of the club, introduced the following out of town visitors: Henry A. Story, Burbank; Albert W. Woods, Fort Worth, Tex.; Art Church. Santa Maria; Jim Woodford, Tulsa, Okla.; James Shelton, Fred Ortman, Clarence A. Hinkle and Simeon Baldwin, Los Angeles; Frank Crowell, Alva, Okla.; W. M. Argabrite, Ventura; and Paul Light, Liberal, Kan.

Club Will Picnic

Dr. Fay G. Stone, chairman of the picnic committee, announced that the Glendale Rotarians would hold their jinks day at Brookside park in Pasadena, coffee and dessert to be provided. V. M. Hollister insisted that all take their bathing suits to have a swim in the new plunge as the water therein is 2 per cent purer than Pasadena's supply for domestic use.

Next week's meeting of the Rotary club will be held at the Jewel City Undertaking parlors, Rotarian J. E. Phillips being the host.

Dying Girl Refuses To Tell of Assailant

CHICAGO, Aug. 17. — Irene Lovell, of Cedar Falls, Iowa, a former Hollywood actress, today was dying at the County Hospital, her body a mass of bruises apparently suffered in a severe beating. It is also believed she may have been poisoned. Broken in spirit, the girl today continued her refusal to tell physicians and police how her injuries were sustained.

Police are holding Edward Hampden, a clerk at the Astor Hotel, in connection with the case. The girl had registered at the Union Hotel under the namo of "Mrs. Edward Hampden." But Hampden denied attacking the girl. He admitted sending her to the Union Hotel, without knowing, however, that she was going to use his name, he said.

Convict Thirteen on Forest Fire Charges

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 17—First results from the crusade launched by State Forester N. B. Pratt against persons responsible for forest fires were announced here today when Pratt reported his rangers have secured thirteen convictions in Riverside county during the past few weeks.

The convicted men, most of whom were accused of starting fires without permits or permitting fires to get beyond their control, were forced to pay heavy fines, and in one case a jail sentence was meted out in addition to the fine.

EAGLE ROCK

SUMMER SESSION OF SCHOOL ENDS

Pupils Hear Stirring Talk at Commencement from Ex-Supt. Harwood

The six weeks' summer session at the Eagle Rock school terminated today, the 10:30 o'clock assembly this morning marking the close of Eagle Rock's first free extra term in the public school system.

The "commencement" address, delivered in the auditorium by E. E. Harwood, former superintendent, made a decided impression on the pupils and their parents. It was due largely to Mr. Harwood's efforts that the summer session was made possible, and everyone appreciates this fact.

It will be remembered that he was called away from this community to take charge of the school work at Hermosa Beach. Mrs. Reed, principal of the summer session, also addressed the pupils. She pointed out that much credit is due the boys and girls who have completed a whole semester's work in these six short weeks.

Few of those enrolling for the work realized how strenuous it would be. This, however, was inevitable, for the prescribed amount of work had to be completed in order for the pupils to catch up with their class or skip a grade, as the case happened to be.

Now that the session is over, it is expected that there will be a rush to the mountains and beaches, to make the most of deferred vacations before the fall term cuts holiday-time short.

Teacher Becomes Bride

Miss Dorothy Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jones of Colorado boulevard near College View avenue, was married on Friday, August 10, 1923, to John B. McNary of Central and Eagle avenues.

The event is the culmination of a high school romance. The bride has been a teacher at the Eagle Rock school. The groom is a teacher of manual arts at the Pasadena high school. The couple have left on a two weeks' trip through the Yosemite valley and the northern part of the state.

The bride was attended by her sister, Margaret Johns, as maid of honor, and two sisters of the groom, Misses Louanna and Katheryn McNary, as bridesmaids. The maid-of-honor wore yellow taffeta and the bridesmaids gowns of Canton crepe in shades of blue and lavender. All three attendants carried lavender sweet peas.

The groom was attended by his brother, Thomas Benton McNary, and the ceremony was performed by the bride's pastor, Rev. W. E. Edmonds, of the Glendale Presbyterian church. To the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by Miss Cornelia Glover of Los Angeles, a university friend of the bride, the bridal party advanced to a bower of old English ivy and ferns, the bride being given away by her father. The single ring ceremony was used.

The bride's bouquet of beautiful white roses was caught by Miss Christensen, another Eagle Rock teacher.

THEATRES

THE GLENDALE

"Three Jumps Ahead," Tom Mix's latest film romance of the western plains, shows today for the list times at the Glendale Theatre. Winsome Alma Bennett plays opposite the star.

It is difficult to select for description one of the many thrills offered in this dramatic picture, but the one where Mix leaps twenty feet across a canyon ninety feet deep is, perhaps, as dramatic as any.

The story concerns the rounding up of a gang of cattle-rustlers in Texas. Mix, who has never used a double, is at his best. Mounted on Tony, his superb steed, he thrills the audience from the first foot to the last.

If you like a fast-moving western, excellently made, with thrills galore and a good measure of romance, you will vote "Three Jumps Ahead" a winner.

Lion and tiger skins pass through eight to ten different hands before they are converted into a rug.

THE GATEWAY

"Brass," now showing at the Gateway Theatre, offers its patrons a superb story of marriage and divorce, from the novel by Charles G. Norris that was read by 2,000,000 and is still a best seller; it offers a cast headed by Monte Blue and Marie Prevost, including such stars as Frank Keenan, Miss Dupont, Irene Rich, Harry Myers, Helen Ferguson, Margaret Seddon, Cyril Chadwick and Edward Jobson; and it offers the masterful direction, adroit handling of characters and understanding of natural values introduced by the capable director of many successes, Sidney Franklin.

"Brass" is a super-picture, from start to finish. It is thought-provoking, intense, dramatic, satirical, vivid, gorgeous. In short, it is a "best-seller" as a film, just as it was as a book.

If you are married, have ever been married or ever contemplate the step, you should see "Brass." The picture is not recommended to those who are looking for a dull evening.

Gypsy's Plan to Rout Spirits Costs $1000

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 17. —Mrs. Gloria Silva, of No. 170 Mulberry street, went to see a gypsy fortune teller, who told her that she was being haunted by evil spirits, and in order to drive them away must get $1000 in cash and hang it around her neck.

Mrs. Silva drew the family savings, and the gypsy helped her fix the charm. Later Mrs. Silva found a roll of old paper around her neck instead of the currency.

Boy, 2½ Years Old Converses Fluently

WEST BEND, Wis., Aug. 17.—At the age of 2½ years William Feierisen, Jr., of this town, not only knows the alphabet perfectly, says his own prayers each night, knows a great number of poems, but talks without the least trace of baby prattle.

This town is very proud of the child, who is looked upon by all as "wonderful."

When but little more than 1 year Billy could talk quite fluently, say those who have known the child since infancy. Almost from birth, they say, he remembered everything upon being told once.

The child's father is an antomobile mechanic employed at a garage here. The little boy has frequently watched his father at work. He was given a small toy automobile for Christmas. On several occasions, it is said, he has taken the little machine apart and cleaned it without having the least trouble in putting it together again unaided.

BURBANK

CLOSE STREETS TO HEAVY TRAFFIC

Trustees of Burbank Take Action as Result of Threatened Damage

A total of twenty-two streets, comprising nineteen avenues and three cross streets, have been declared boulevards by the Board of Trustees and closed to heavy traffic.

The ordinance forbids truck traffic heavier than one and one-half tons on any of these streets. It comes after several weeks of deliberation on the part of the city fathers, during which they watched the havoc being wrought by heavy trucks, laden to the limit.

The drastic action was at last taken when it became obvious that otherwise the large expense of paving these streets would have to be borne over again.

The ordinance involves nearly all the north and south streets of the city. Following is the list: Elmwood, Cedar, Providencia, Santa Anita, Verdugo, Tujunga, Angeleno, Olive, Orange Grove, Palm, Magnolia, San Jose, Cypress, Harvard, Fairmont, Sherlock, Grinnell, Delaware and Amherst avenues; and Sixth, Eighth and Tenth streets.

Choral Club Concerts

The Burbank Choral Club has received consent of the Board of Education to hold its five coming concerts in the high school auditorium, announces Charles L. Munro, director of the club.

Rehearsals will be held in the music room of the high school.

The program for the coming season includes as one of its numbers, presentation of a light opera. The club plans to hold a picnic some time before the end of August, according to Mr. Munro.

The Sunset Canyon Country club is holding a series of Sunday night "musical hours," starting at 7:30 o'clock, following the dinner hour. Some of the most talented musicians in Southern California will be secured for these programs it is understood.

L. A. Police Chief Here

Augustus Vollmer, new Los Angeles chief of police visited Burbank recently while on his way back from his former home in Berkeley, to take up his duties as head of the crime-fighting department of the great southern metropolis.

Few people would be able to guess why he visited Burbank. It was not to call on relatives, nor to rest for the night, nor to paint a canvas of some peaceful Burbank scene, nor to interview Chief Long with a view to getting some "dope" on how to run the Los Angeles department.

Ha! Mystery Solved!

What brought Chief Vollmer to Burbank was an earnest desire to escape the battery of cameras, reporters and curiosity-seekers he knew awaited him at the Los Angeles terminal of the Southern Pacific line.

To fool this delegation, the chief slipped off the train at Burbank, got into an automobile and proceeded to Los Angeles by an obscure route that brought him to police headquarters unrecognized.

Locate Reclamation Office at Sacramento

FALLON, Nev., Aug. 17—Western headquarters of the federal reclamation commission will be located in Sacramento, Cal., if the recommendation of Niles Cannon, newly appointed commissioner of reclamation meets with approval.

Cannon, who is here inspecting the Newlands Project, said he recommended Sacramento because it is centrally located and the pivot of many of the greatest reclamation projects in the west.

Under the new policy of the reclamation service Cannon states that particular attention will be devoted to establishment of small farms on the various projects, encouragement of thrifty settlers, closer co-operation between farmers and government departments, and inducements to farmers of other states to locate in western irrigation districts.

Decline in Gold and Silver Will Be Probed

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 17.—Fletcher Hamilton, former state mineralogist, has been appointed assistant to the senate commission inquiring into the decline of the gold and silver industry, according to word received here from Washington.

Hamilton is expected to arrive in California within the next few weeks to hold a series of conferences with mining men and secure data the commission will include in its report to the senate.

Heart Failure Kills Argonaut Miner Here

JACKSON (Amador Co.), Aug. 17.—Henry Martin Lorentson, one of the miners who participated in the heroic but futile attempt to rescue the men entombed in the Argonaut mine last August, is dead.

Lorentson died of heart failure just one year from the date he made his last trip down into the earth with the Argonaut rescue party.

A movement for erection of a memorial to Colonel Edward Dickinson Baker, commander of a brigade in the Mexican war and a strong factor in keeping California faithful to the Union preceding the Civil war, is being started.

City Council Gets Annual Report Of Local Library Showing Glendale's Growth

THE Glendale Public Library's annual report for the fiscal year ending July 1 was received last night by the City Council. This report was forwarded to the city administration by the Board of Trustees of the library. This is composed of O. Spencer of 433 West Broadway; Mrs. Flora M. Temple of 145 North Orange street; T. W. Preston of 330 North Jackson street; Mrs. Genevieve D. Goss of 115½ South Brand boulevard and Mrs. Charles Parker of 1415 South Glendale avenue. Mrs. Alma J. Danford of 308 East Harvard street is librarian.

"It is my esteemed privilege to submit the sixteenth annual report of the Glendale Public Library," states Mrs. Danford. "As a climax, I shall put forth statistics to verify a growth commensurate with the growth of Glendale—the three outstanding features being a total circulation of 213,044 volumes, an increase of 10,454 books and the inadequate room for housing these extraordinary activities. This year has offered an opportunity for service for which great appreciation has been shown by the patrons."

Almost 5000 more persons are taking advantage of the opportunities offered by the library now than at the commencement of the last fiscal year. During this period borrowers' cards have been added in the following numbers: Main library, 4241; South Branch, 506, and North Branch, 218.

Circulation Figures

Circulation figures are as follows:

Total circulation — Main library 165,783; South branch, 42,527; North branch, 4,734.

Largest circulation per month —Main library, 13,815; South branch, 3,628; North branch, 1,522.

Average circulation per month —Main library, 13,815; South branch, 3,628; North branch, 1,522.

Fiction circulation—Main library, 74,102; South branch, 20,310; North branch, 1,429.

Total non-fiction circulation—Main library, 20,299; South branch, 3,349; North branch, 330.

Juvenile fiction circulation — Main library, 47,831; South branch, 12,450; North branch, 2,082.

Juvenile non-fiction circulation—Main library, 9,151; South branch, 2,140; North branch, 600.

Magazine circulation — Main library, 13,261; South branch, 4,015; North Branch, 293.

In addition, the Main library circulated 459 bound magazines, 400 mounted pictures; 132 stereographs and 148 bulletins. The South Branch circulated 263 bound magazines.

Over 1950 books and magazines were bound during this period. This number was divided as follows:

Main library, books rebound, 1,626; magazines bound, 78; total, 1,704.

South branch—books rebound, 247.

Not Many Lost

Only forty-six books were lost during the year by patrons of the library. Of this number thirty-nine belonged to the Main library and the remaining seven to the South branch. In addition, 934 books were discarded from the Main library and 116 from the South branch, making a total of 1,050.

Financial receipts of the library system were as follows:

Local taxation—$42,868.05.

Fines — Main library, $1,566.66; South branch, $345.29; North branch, $6.44; total, $1,918.39.

Unexpended balance July 1, 1922—$2,194.29.

Total receipts—$46,980.73.

Total expenses amounted to $37,020.19—leaving a balance on hand July 1, 1923, of $9,960.54.

Money Expended

Disbursements were divided as follows:

Binding—Main library, $1,892.37; South branch, $232.45.

Books—Main library, $11,035; South branch, $2,411.04; North branch, $1,672.54.

SANITARIUM SITE TO BE AUCTIONED

Proceeds From Sale Will Be Used to Enlarge New Hospital Plant

Mrs. Allie Taylor Anderson, who recently took over the Thornycroft Sanitarium, has announced her intention to largely increase the usefulness of that establishment and make it an institution of which the city of Glendale can well be proud.

Mrs. Anderson on next Tuesday at 2 p. m. will offer the old site of the Golden West Sanitarium at public auction. The sale is being conducted by Victor M. Clark and staff of which W. Dwight Hammond is auctioneer. These people are already well known to Glendale people, having conducted several successful auctions here.

Mrs. Anderson is not blind to the fact that this property, located at 1125 East California avenue, embracing about one and one-half acres in the heart of Glendale is rapidly increasing in value, due to the phenomenal growth of this city which has shown an increase in population of nearly 400 per cent in the last decade, but she feels that to do credit to herself and the institution which she now heads, she must concentrate her efforts along this one line, hence her willingness to sacrifice this splendid property which was for several years the home of the Golden West Sanitarium.

Economy Market Now In Its New Quarters

The opening of the Economy wholesale and retail fruit and vegetable market at its new address, 444 West Los Feliz road, is announced by J. Lewis, proprietor.

The establishment was formerly located in the Gateway Market, where, according to Mr. Lewis, he had a large number of fruit and vegetable customers.

On the opening day at the Los Feliz address, Saturday, August 18, special reductions are offered by the Economy market, to introduce old friends to the new quarters and to acquaint new friends with Mr. Lewis' fair-and-square policy of doing business.

In addition to further building up its retail business, the Economy market plans to develop its wholesale trade to a marked extent, in the location it has now secured.

Committee To Aid In Proposing P. O. Sites

The appointment of a special committee to co-operate with Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson and other postoffice officials in helping to locate suitable site for the proposed new Glendale postoffice was made by the directors of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce at their special meeting held on Wednesday night, the committee consisting of R. F. Kitterman, Dr. Henry Harrower and H. M. Butts.

Postmaster Jackson was present at the meeting and his work in office was warmly praised by several members of the board.

The remainder of the time at the meeting was taken up with clearing the slate of several routine matters that have been pending for some time.

Nash Is Shoe Fixer Who Guarantees Work

J. H. Nash at 1259½ South Brand boulevard is not the Nash who manufactures the well known motorcars by that name. No, that's the C. W. Nash.

But J. H. has worked for Henry Ford at times, although he doesn't claim to be in possession of all the wealth of Henry.

This J. H. Nash is a fixer of soles, almost as important, if not more so, as making automobiles. He also "heels" the shoes brought to his "hospital."

He is one doctor who guarantees operations to be successful for the life of the leather, at least.

Apple Shipments Are Setting New Records

CALISTOGA, (Napa Co.), Aug. 17.—Calistoga's apple shipments are breaking all records this year, according to a check of local packing plants.

Shipments are averaging nearly ten cars a day and the packing plants are having difficulty in handling the crop.

Packers are averaging about $10 a day, while the expert packers are making as high as $15 a day.

Heavy shipments of Bartlett pears are also reported.

INCREASE SHOWN IN JEWETT SALES

Growth of 270 Per Cent Told In Letter From Paige Company Head

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 17.—Jewett sales for the first six months in 1923 showed a 270 per cent increase over the same period of 1922, according to H. M. Jewett, president of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company, builders of the car, in a letter to Ralph B. Bliss, 308 East Colorado, local agent.

The success of the Jewett was assured almost from the day it was first announced at the 1922 New York Automobile Show, says the Paige president. At that time, he said, the Jewett attracted more interest than any other medium priced motor car at the show.

"However, we did not contemplate any such growth in sales as has been shown by this automobile," said Mr. Jewett. "Considering that we had several models of the lighter Paige still in production in the early part of 1922, we thought that our Jewett production for that period might be increased several thousand on elimination of the light models of the Paige line. But we did not expect we soon would be building more than 200 Jewetts daily and planning on a production of 500 daily in 1924.

"With the constant increase in factory efficiency, we expect to build many more Jewetts in the last six months of 1923 than 22,093—the production for the first six months.

"December of this year will probably see production started in our new Jewett plant, now in course of construction. The contractors recently assured our engineers that machinery installation could be undertaken in November."

Commissioners Will Tell of Mexico Pact

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 17.—The American commissioners to the Mexican-American "recognition conference"—Charles B. Warren and John Burton Payne—are on their way to Washington, leaving behind them a most optimistic belief in all circles, that diplomatic relations will soon be resumed between the two countries. The Americans are traveling on a special train put at their disposal by the Mexican government and are due to reach Washington next Monday.

It is understood that they will report at once to President Coolidge and Secretary of State Hughes, explaining the technical points in the agreement signed yesterday. This agreement safeguards American property and financial rights in Mexico and arranges for assessment of damage claims. If diplomatic relations are resumed, the covenants will be released by joint action of both governments.

Sifting the Truth

TODAY'S SHORT STORY, BY Ad Schuster ®

Whelan, representative of the Farmers' Exchange, met young Tom West on the road and drew up his horse.

"Met young Camp as I was cutting through the field and gave him the last installment on your last year's crop. Brought it in currency as I thought you would want it to pay the hands and wouldn't have time to go to town."

"What was it, eleven hundred?"

The agent nodded. "If I'd a known I was going to meet you, I wouldn't a given it to Jim." He rode on.

The $1100 was going to mean much for Tom West and Fred Mortimer, partners in the wheat ranch. It would tide them over until first payment on the new yield. Tom looked across the fields at a little white house where Sallie Camp and her brother Jim lived. He hoped he would see the girl when he stopped for his money.

It was Sallie who met him, white faced and frightened.

"Tom, something terrible has happened. You know Jim was out in your field burning some of the old stacks when Whelan came along and gave him your money. Well, Jim has lost it—and you know what that means!"

It meant ruin unless the bank or the Exchange would furnish a loan, but Tom knew Sallie was thinking of something else. Jim, the youth Tom had given a chance and stood up for, had come here from a reform school. And he had lost the money during a walk of less than a mile and a half. Tom's thoughts were written on his face.

"You don't believe he has it yet?" The girl was intensely serious. "Tom, I know Jim feels worse than you or I do. I know he is honest and would do anything in the world for you. Both of us. We will work and pay you back. You can take our place and the house, anything, only don't believe he's guilty!"

Sallie, beseeching and pitiful, stirred new feeling in the heart of the farmer. "It isn't what I believe," he said. "It's Fred. We'll try to find it. Where's Jim?"

"Cut in the fields looking. He'll be there until dark."

To find a lost article in a wheat field is a task calling for monumental luck. There was no success. From the first Fred Mortimer had distained to look.

"Watch that young Jim," he advised. "He's got it hidden somewhere. Don't let him go to town."

No one but Sallie and Tom believed Jim was innocent, and the weight of suspicion all but crushed the lad who felt he could see prison doors opening and hear the old verdict, "Once a crook, always a crook."

The Exchange made a small loan but not enough. Tom decided when the harvest was over he would leave the ranch to Fred and go to Spargo to work in the big terminal elevator where the crop of two states pours out of the cars and trucks into the maws of the cleaners. A salary for three months would help to make up for the loss.

"I'm sorry you are going," Sallie said, "for you are the only one to stand between Jim and all this suspicion. Sometimes I wonder if you don't believe him guilty."

"Let's forget Jim," Tom evaded. "Sallie, if the prices are good for this crop we just harvested, will you marry me and let me take care of Jim as a brother?"

The girl smiled at him and then turned serious again.

"It wouldn't be fair if you think he is a thief. When you prove him innocent, Tom, not before."

That was like a woman, thought Tom, to tell him to prove Jim guiltless just when he was going miles away. Well, maybe she would see the thing right some day. With a heavy heart he started in his new work.

Tom stood on the cement floor of the elevator beneath the cleaner through which poured a golden stream of grain. A small knife fell at his feet and he salvaged it. Men in the wheat fields used knives to cut the binder twine and annually hundreds of them, laid aside and lost, were sent with the grain to the elevators to sift through the cleanser. Bits of broken glass tinkling on the floor told of a bottle cached away by a harvest hand. There were stories of queer finds, of a pair of women's shoes, a dead prairie chicken, hundreds of knives, rings, keys and books. Tom thought of the romance behind these things picked up in the fields of several states and sifted from the grain. A plump bundle landed at his feet and he jumped on it a good second ahead of anyone else.

The packet was bound tight by rubber bands and was currency. Tom counted $1,100 and stood as a man in a daze. The faith of Sallie in her brother, her belief that he could prove the lad innocent—these must have worked the mirable. To make sure, he checked up in the office to find out it was his wheat which had passed through.

With the $1,100 which allayed all suspicion Tom returned to the ranch and to Sallie.

"Now will you marry me?" he asked.

"I was going to anyway," she confessed.

Daily Fashion Hint

Prepared Especially for The Glendale Evening News

BOTH PRACTICAL AND EXQUISITE

An unusually dainty idea is exploited in the first dress of tan cotton crepe, with fastening at the left side. It is trimmed with one of the novelty ribbons which shade from tan to very deep brown.

The ribbon is plaited, then stitched on the front of the waist and at the lower left side of the skirt in fanciful design. A belt of self-material holds in the fulness at the waist, while the short set-in sleeves are finished with turn-back cuffs. Medium size requires 3¾ yards 36-inch material, with 4½ yards of ribbon.

The second frock is made in a combination of fabrics, the center section and puffs of the kimono sleeves being of novelty crepe with drop-stitch stripe. The neck may be in either of two styles—V-shaped in front and finished with a round standing collar, or with a 'kerchief or bertha collar. Those who admire the Egyptian patterns, yet do not desire a frock made entirely of such fabrics, will find this an acceptable model for using plain and figured materials together. Medium size requires 1¾ yards 36-inch figured and 3⅝ yards 36-inch plain material.

First Model—Pictorial Review Dress No. 1612. Sizes, 16 to 20 years, and 34 to 44 inches bust. Price, 35 cents.

Second Model—Dress No. 1569. Sizes, 16 to 20 years, and 34 to 44 inches bust. Price, 35 cents.

Beauty Chats

By Edna Kent Forbes

CORNS

There is no real difference between a hard corn and a soft one except that a soft corn, being between the toes, is kept soft by the moisture from the skin. When one begins to form, put a felt ring around it to keep the toes or the shoe from pressing against it. If possible make the ring yourself out of white felt or moleskin, for then you can cut it to the proper size. Go to a good chiropodist for treatment.

A callous spot on the outside of the toe grows thick from the constant pressure of the shoe. The center part grows downward into the skin and, when it begins to press upon the nerves, causes the most intense pain.

If you are going to treat your feet yourself, soak them for 15 minutes in fairly hot water to which a little borax has been added, or in which a little soap has been melted. A great deal of loose skin can be rubbed off then, especially between the toes, and a good deal of callous skin can be taken off with the pumice stone. The nails are easily trimmed and cleaned then.

If you are going to shave a corn it should be done as soon as the feet are taken from the water while the skin is soft. Especially sharp corn knives can be purchased, or safety razor blades used. You should not use these yourself unless you are sufficiently skillful with your fingers so you will cut only the callous skin and not the live skin, and the blade should be thoroughly sterilized before using.

After removing the corn the spot should then be painted with collodion and bound up with a little absorbent cotton for a day or two so the shoe will not press on it. Afterwards the spot should be rubbed with cold cream or petroleum jelly every night for a week or two.

As it is obvious that your present style of shoes has caused the corns, change as soon as possible to a style allowing greater freedom.

Marion C. E.—A cream that contains cucumber or lemon would be a good choice for bleaching purposes. Have a specialist examine your nose before you decide upon the operation.

Gertrude L. and E. L. S.—The formula for the Pilocarpine tonic cannot be printed at this time. Send a stamped self-addressed envelope to have it mailed to you. This advice also applies to the cream formula.

Blue Eyes—C. R. and Jolly—Wear low cut corsets that are laced very loosely over the direct waistline. The whole effect will be to lengthen lines and give an appearance of a smaller bust. It is not sensible to try to reduce the bust through drying up the tissues, or through any pressure. And it might not be safe. Perhaps you need to reduce your weight.

Tomorrow—Superfluous Hair

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

SPEAKING OF TEETH

How can we be sure about anything in a medical line?

We are told one thing with such enthusiasm, and then just as soon as we have adjusted ourselves to believe that that is the truth we are told something else with equal enthusiasm and finality.

There's scarlet fever, for instance. For years people had no idea that the peeling had anything to do with the contagion and children still peeling were allowed to go to school. Then the medical profession discovered that it was the peeling stage that was dangerous and all precautions were based on that idea. And now the advanced wing has again discovered that the danger time is the first day or two and that the peeling is harmless (this has not been universally accepted, but it is one of the latest ideas and it looks as if it might be accepted).

Once a Day

Or take the matter of the teeth. Here are some of the stages that I have passed through in my lifetime:

As a child I brushed my teeth at night. It was recommended that I brush them in the morning, but not insisted upon.

Later, of course, I brushed them twice a day.

Then along came a doctor friend who said one should brush his teeth at least five times a day and should have at least two or three toothbrushes.

The brushing, however, was still of the old-fashioned kind, across the teeth.

The next discovery was that all this brushing had been absolutely futile—that to do any good one should brush up and down and also inside the teeth. If one did this one need not worry about dentist's bills. "A clean tooth never decays."

Dental Floss Supplants the Toothpick

The next phase was the dental floss phase. Toothbrushes were not enough, even if one had three, used them five times a day, and brushed the teeth across, up and down, inside and out. One must also employ dental floss for one's teeth toilette if one hoped to get the clean tooth that never decayed.

Another phase (I am not always sure of the exact chronology) was the discovery that the toothbrush could be an enemy as well as a friend; it could catch germs from the atmosphere and convey them into the mouth. One was advised to keep the brush in alcohol between cleanings.

But better than this too simple method, declared one prominent dentist at a convention, one could construct an arrangement of a rubber bag and tube with a flow of water that was to be in some way persuaded to flow through the toothbrush while one was brushing one's teeth.

Brush Your Gums!

My own dentist told me just the other day that the latest dope on the way to defeat this horrible enemy, pyorrhea, that is ready to snatch our teeth away from us, is to brush the gums as well as the teeth.

And lastly I have just read that a big dentist and lecturer has made these following statements:

"Dental floss often does more harm than good.

"Likewise the toothbrush.

"A clean tooth often does decay and a dirty one often remains whole.

"It is simply a matter of diet."

And there you are. We have traveled around a circle and are back to our grandfather's day. Shall we start around again?

Tomorrow—Two Puzzles.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

FEEDING THE FIRST YEAR

Directions for the Diet From 6 to 12 Months—Paper 1.

Very much depends upon the child's getting the right start in liking the foods necessary for childhood while it is still an infant—in reality, while it is still a very young infant, six months old, mothers! Even the nursing babies.

At the sixth month, and sometimes even before the fifth month, many eminent children specialists begin to teach the baby's digestive tract to care for solid foods and the baby himself to like them. This sounds like heresy, I know, to some of you who have thought that nothing except milk and orange juice should pass the baby's lips until well into the second year.

It used to be thought that young babies could not digest starchy foods, nor any foods except milk. But it has been proved that the power to digest other foods besides milk is latent and can be developed if the development is done very gradually. It is upon this very gradual and slow development of the digestive capacity of the infants that the principle of introducing any new food in the diet is founded.

Beginning with not more than one-half a level teaspoonful and increasing at the rate of not more than a half level teaspoonful every other day, strained cereals and pureed vegetables are introduced sometimes as early as the fifth month. The first teeth make their appearance from the fifth to the eighth month, and perhaps Nature takes that method of telling us that solid foods may be started.

One of the chief reasons for including other foods early is that milk is deficient in iron and may be deficient in vitamins. The babe comes into the world with a store of iron in its liver, but by the sixth month this begins to be exhausted. As there is a very small amount of iron in human milk and cows' milk, we have to think of supplying other foods for this vital element.

Since we are beginning to feed babies solid food much earlier than we formerly did, we have very many less cases of anemia, scurvy, rickets and malnutrition than before.

But, mothers, because we are beginning to feed the babies early does not mean that we do not still continue to condemn giving tastes of things to babies from the table. That is usually dangerous. So often babies are given tastes of things they should not have and out of their regular feeding time.

The baby should have its little bit of solid food, but only foods that its little intestinal tract can handle, and they must be given only at its regular feeding time. Irregularity in feeding and the feeding of foods that babies should not have—both of these often coming from the practice of "giving tastes"—are two big causes of illness in babies.

The foods besides milk that can be given the first year are the fruit juices and strained cooked fruit or scraped raw fruit pulp, strained cereal, strained and pureed vegetables, beef and vegetable broths free from fat, and egg yolks.

Nursing babies can also begin at the sixth month to have solid foods just as the bottle babies. Although, it is not so important for them as it is for the bottle babies, because of the superiority of the human milk over cows' milk.

Orange juice, or, if that cannot be secured, tomato juice (canned or fresh), or raw cabbage juice, should be begun in the second or third month, for the anti-scorbutic vitamins. If given one hour before the mid-morning feeding, and begun in very small doses—not over a small teaspoonful at first, well diluted in water—this will cause no disturbances. The amount can very gradually be increased until two tablespoonfuls or more are taken every day. This will prevent the baby from having scurvy.

Boiled water should also be given babies at least twice a day, either from a cup or from the bottle.

Save this article, please, mothers, to use with the feeding directions I shall give you for the next six Fridays. They will not be available for distribution after their publication in this column until they are published in book form.

In Hot Weather

Dear Mothers:

During the hottest days of the summer you should take most of the clothing off your babies. Do not be afraid to change the weight of the clothing, putting on warmer clothes as it gets cooler during the day, and taking them off or putting on lighter weight clothes during the hottest part. Babies suffer terribly from the heat if they are too warmly clothed.

Give them cool sponge baths frequently if it is very hot. And let them drink freely of cooled boiled water.

During the hottest days, if they are bottle-fed, it may be wise to dilute the formula a little with boiled water. The older children may have to have their diets reduced a little, too—unless, of course, they have been under-eating.

Apple Cake: "Make a light sweet biscuit dough as follows. Sift together one and one-half cups of ordinary bread flour, two teaspoons of baking powder, one teaspoon of sugar and one-half teaspoon of salt. Work into this, with the finger-tips, one heaping tablespoon of butter. Then moisten this dry mixture with three-fourths of a cup of sweet milk. This will make a soft dough. Carefully turn it into a lightly-floured pie pan and pat it down with the hand, until it covers the entire surface of the pan and is about one inch thick all over. The next step is to pare, core, and quarter five or six apples and press these apple-quarters deep into the dough in the pan (put them close together and cover every bit of the dough). Then sprinkle the apple with one-half cup of granulated sugar which has been mixed with one teaspoon of ground cinnamon. Slip the pie-pan into a hot oven and bake from 25 to 30 minutes. In the baking, the dough should rise and brown delicately between the apple-pieces. Peaches may be used in place of apples if desired. Serve with a hot liquid sauce made as follows:

"Hot Sauce for Apple Cake: To two cups of boiling water add a lump of butter the size of an egg, two tablespoons of sugar, and one and one-half tablespoons of cornstarch which has been mixed to a paste in a very little cold water; let this mixture boil up once or twice, till thickened, then remove it from fire, add one teaspoon of vanilla or one teaspoon of lemon extract. Mrs. W. T."

"Bran Loaf: Mix together one cup of bran, one cup of graham flour, one cup of white flour, two teaspoons of baking powder and one-half teaspoon of salt. In another bowl mix together two beaten eggs, one-half cup of granulated sugar, one cup of sour milk in which one-half teaspoon of soda has been dissolved, and two tablespoons of melted butter. Combine the two mixtures, then add one cup of stoned dates cut small. Turn all into a buttered bread pan and bake in a moderate over from 45 minutes to one hour. Old Reader."

HELEN WILLS TO PLAY FOR TITLE

Meeting of California Net Star and Mrs. Mallory Seems Assured

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—According to the best advices, East will meet West, in spite of Mr. Kipling, for the American championship in tennis singles in a final round match between Mrs. Molla Mallory, champion and Miss Helen Wills, challenger, and extremely immature.

That much is popularly supposed to be "in the bag." The champion must dispose of Mrs. R. C. Clayton of England, and Helen still has Miss Eleanor Goss to reckon with in the semi-finals, but both should win in a gallop. The Goss entry has all the strokes, including the most dazzling service that ever a woman had, but she lacks determination and a competitor without determination is not a real competitor. The little "pokerface" will survive the issue, perhaps without the loss of a set. Mrs. Mallory finished second to Mrs. Clayton in England this year, but has already reversed this verdict twice and, in view of the fact that she is riding the crest of her best game at the moment, seems to have little to fear from the invaders. So much for that.

A final round meeting between Molla and Helen would be the second in as many years and the moment for which the gallery has been calling since the start of the championship. The West would cheer an upset.

However, Mrs. Mallory is the most accurate woman player in the game today, her nerve is armor plated and she covers ground in the back court. Because of these advantages and because Mallory is Mallory, many believe that Helen Wills may still be one year removed from her first national championship.

TAGGING ALL BASES

Curtis Walker lifted the ball out of the park, scoring two outs in the ninth. The Phillies were the victors of the Pirates, 8 to 5.

Danford confined the Yanks to three hits, but they were bunched and the Browns finished second, 3 to 1.

The pitching of Dauss, a triple by Cobb and a homer by Faussill gave the Tigers over the 3 to 0 edge over the Cubs.

The Cleveland Americans rallied around 20 base hits at the expense of Murray and won in a slow walk, from the Red Sox, 12 to 3.

The Giants sent Benton on his left-handed way in short order and easily won the third game of the series with the Reds, 7 to 1.

The Sweetest Outfield In The Majors

The sweetest outfield in the major leagues today is the one Connie Mack trots onto the field daily. It trails one or two outfields in hitting but is the most brilliant fielding outfit in the big show. All three members make up in timely hitting and heady base running what they lack in straight swatting ability. Matthews is hitting .300. The others are hovering near that mark.

COLORADO INVENTION

A Colorado man has invented an attachment with which soap can be mixed with the water used to clean machinery and floors when hose is employed.

The WORLD OVER

By FRANKLIN B. MORSE.
PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

In these days of intersectional sport and because of the long distances that have to be traversed in order to be on the spot where some title event is being held for the championship of the nation or a region, steps should be taken to insure funds for the purpose of sending individuals or teams to represent a particular district or city.

The need for a fund of this sort in every community was sharply brought out a few days ago when tennis enthusiasts of San Francisco decided that that city should be represented in the municipal tennis championship of the United States. The municipal courts of San Francisco included among its players a number of youngsters who were considered capable of holding their own in any company and were likely to reflect credit on the town from which they hailed.

Immediately the problem of financing the trip of three or four boys arose. There was no money in sight for the purpose. There was no fund dedicated to the purpose from which to draw. The only way that seemed feasible was to go about and solicit subscriptions from individuals. This resulted in only a partial success. Not enough money was subscribed to put through the undertaking. It must inevitably have failed unless William F. Humphrey, president of the Olympic club of San Francisco, had not put his hands into his personal pockets and made up the entire sum required.

This was a sportsmanlike thing to do and insured the desired representation, but it must be remembered that instances of this sort are rare and cannot be depended on. Every city has athletic organizations of various sorts. There is no reason why all of them should not contribute regularly a certain prescribed quota into a general sinking fund to be used in sending its representatives afield.

If golf clubs, athletic and country clubs, tennis clubs and other organizations would do this, it would be a simple matter to have a sufficient balance at all times to finance individuals and teams. A common fund of this kind would enable golfers, tennis players, boxers, handball men and other representatives to be sent to any of the various championships that are being held. As this writer sees it, it would have to have the support of all organizations in order to be a success and insure sufficient funds.

Doubtless this plan could be worked out so as to function satisfactorily to all hands. With a proper board of managers the money would not be wasted, for care would be insured as to whether or not representatives for any championship were sufficiently good to stand a chance of being returned the victors. Manifestly it would be silly to send a man or a team that had no chance. Whenever this occurred, the fund would have a chance to grow.

SPORTS CHATTER

By BILL UNMACK
PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

For many years baseball writers have been predicting the slowing up of Ty Cobb, only to have the veteran fool them all by either heading the batting list of the American league or being included among the leaders. For the first time, it would seem that the critics are having their own way. If one sticks to a guess long enough, the law of averages is bound to come along and help out, and this seems to be the case with Cobb.

Cobb this year is rated along from sixteenth to twentieth position in the official batting averages, and it finally looks as if Father Time had begun to take his toll of the veteran's speed, for spend, and not the eye, generally is blamed for a falling off in a batting percentage. It is held that a man's eye remains, but what would have been a base hit of yore becomes an out today because the legs do not function as fast as they did on the trip to first base from the plate.

The reason why Pacific coast tennis players are prone to overdo the game when they go East has been ascribed to the fact that, because it is a long and expensive trip, the players feel that they should get all the tennis into the trip they possibly can.

Among their friends of the coast Johnston, the Kinsey brothers and Helen Wills, all have been accused of overdoing the game and not taking enough time for rest and recuperation, and if this feeling continues there is likely to be a concerted movement among their well-wishers to order them to abstain.

We have lost track of the number of fights that Firpo has longed to participate in before he meets Dempsey, but there seems to be three, four or five of them. Of course they are all against men who are not expected to prove stumblingblocks.

Firpo will need them all, and then some, to get the experience which, all critics are agreed, he needs before he can hope to cope against Dempsey. Certainly there is nothing like actual ring experience in a regular match to gain this. No amount of gymnasium work will give as much as the actual contest in battle. Whether or not the men against whom Firpo will battle are calculated to be sufficiently good to teach him much remains to be seen. At least he can try himself out against them, and his trainers can then tell him wherein he fails, and correct his various weaknesses, the principal one of which has been determined to be "crudeness." For crudeness, Firpo undoubtedly has hit upon about the best cure.

Giants Back Pitcher In Battle With Reds

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—The effective hurling of Watson of the Giants spelled defeat for the Reds here yesterday. The Giants lambasted the old apple almost at will, garnering sixteen hits. Frisch and Meusel of the McGraw outfit connected for the circuit.

Confidence in self is essential to succeed, while over-confidence is one factor in failure.

Glendale Women At Home From Three Months Spent In Traveling About England

A SOJOURN of three months in England was the vacation feature for Mrs. Alma J. Parkes and Miss L. B. Skilton of 636 East Orange Grove avenue. Mrs. Parkes made the trip to visit relatives of her father, while Miss Skilton, who is former forelady of the mailing department at the Harrower Laboratory, journeyed overseas to visit her parents and other relatives living in England.

They left Glendale April 25 and upon reaching New York sailed on the mammoth Cunard liner Aquatania. Their entire vacation was spent visiting and traveling in England. Mrs. Parkes visited her father's relatives in Devonshire, and Miss Skilton her parents in Berkshire.

Highways Not Good

"We had a delightful vacation," says Mrs. Parkes. "Of course we would have liked to have had an automobile to travel about with, but the roads are wretched and we couldn't even rent a car. We depended on the railroads and the railway cars are very amusing with their separate compartments.

"There are more Americans in London than ever before and they are demonstrating that they have lots of money to spend.

"The English people are interested in life in the United States and many voice the desire to come to America. The housing problem is a big one in England today. People have no money to build homes and they are living in shacks and barns. Work is scarce, wages are low and living is high. The only thing that is cheaper than in the United States is clothing. For instance, we could buy silk and wool hose for 48 cents a pair.

Dockers On Strike

"Just before we left the dockers went on a strike. There were between 50,000 and 60,000 striking, and when we sailed from Southhampton on the English liner Homeric there were hundreds of the strikers at the docks. They tried to get the White Star men to join them. Their wages have been $2.75 a day and the cause for the strike was the movement to reduce the wage to $2.50. Many of the men are going to work for the American lines because they have the money to pay the wages asked.

"One interesting sight we saw in Devonshire was ten acres of ground used for storing hundreds of army transport wagons brought back from the war.

"England has America beaten in the mail service. One can mail a letter there at 6:30 o'clock at night to cover a distance of 200 miles and it will be delivered at 7:30 o'clock the next morning. This prevents the accumulation of mail in any one postoffice.

"All of England is interesting and we found Devonshire a close rival to Southern California for beauty."

Native Daughters to Aid Americanization

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.—Plans for an intensive Americanization program by the Native Daughters of the Golden West are being formulated at the headquarters of the organization here.

One of the first steps to be taken by the Native Daughters will be to supply prospective or newly-made citizens with copies of "The American's Creed". The order has made arrangements with Will C. Wood, state superintendent of public instruction, to secure 1000 copies of the creed for immediate distribution.

Poundmaster Lassoes Chicken Stealing Fox

REDDING, (Shasta Co.) Aug. 17.—W. D. Chapman, Redding's poundmaster, has proved his right to the job. After a spirited chase Chapman recently succeeded in lassoing a fox which had raided several poultry yards here.

90 CANS OF OPIUM

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.—United States Customs Inspectors are in possession today of ninety cans of opium as the result of a search made on the Toyo, Kisen Kaisha liner Taoya. The contraband was found after a cursory search. Under the law the steamship line may be fined $18,800.

Wisconsin Folks Will Stage Annual Picnic

All Badgers of the southland are called from their dug-outs to attend the great all-day mid-summer Wisconsin rally on Saturday, August 25, at Sycamore Grove Park, Los Angeles.

"There will be county registers and headquarters so you can find your old friends and neighbors, even with 10,000 present. Opening about 2 o'clock in the afternoon there will be a brief program, but the main purpose is to have a good time—so let's go," says Col. Frank H. True, president, who will have charge of the big gathering.

"Bring your baskets well filled," he says, "and share with your friends. Coffee will be supplied free to all who buy the souvenir badges."

Further information may be had by phoning President True at 63730 or by phoning C. H. Parsons, secretary of the Federation of State Societies, Continental National Bank, Los Angeles 10261.

Former Pastor Spends Summer on Trip East

Friends of Rev. and Mrs. E. H. Willisford, former "old time" residents of Glendale who are now living in Houston, Texas will be interested in learning that they are enjoying their summer touring throughout the east and middle west states. They are now visiting with relatives in New York City, stopovers having been made at Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Washington, and many other large eastern cities. Their return trip will take them through Ohio, Michigan and along the lakes to Chicago.

Rev. Willisford writes that he plans to follow his custom of "never being away from Glendale more than two years" by spending next summer here. He was the founder and initial pastor of the First Congregational church of this city.

Veteran of 93 Years Sunset Club Member

Charles Bock, charter member of The Glendale Evening News Sunset club, although 93 years of age, is able to get about and attend to business matters, and yesterday afternoon he came over to Glendale to The Evening News office to give a classified advertisement.

In addition to being 93 years of age Mr. Bock is a Civil War veteran, was an acquaintance of Abraham Lincoln and is the oldest member of the N. P. Banks post, G. A. R., of Glendale. He is eagerly looking forward to a meeting of the Sunset club members.

County Fair to Get Record for Exhibits

SUSANVILLE (Lassen Co.), Aug. 17.—Increased awards together with better exhibits than have been shown in the past, indicate that the Lassen County Fair, which is to be held here September 14-16, will far surpass former expositions, according to the directors.

Large delegations will attend the fair from neighboring valley communities.

WAR VETERAN IS RESIDENT IN CITY

John Edward Oldright, Once Texas Ranger, Traveler, Tells Experiences

were only eighteen miles of railroad and this was not used all the year 'round.

"I remember traveling from Troy to Buffalo, N. Y., by the Erie canal. It took us a week and that was considered speed in those days."

After some years in Canada, Major Oldright and his family returned to England and later came back again to reside in Canada. The father wanted his son John to become a soldier but the wanderlust seized the boy and in 1858 he traveled from Buffalo to Chicago by rail and then on down south, finally reaching Memphis, Tenn.

Reading a book on "Texas, Her Resources and Public Men," the boy was lured to the "Lone Star" state and, desiring to live in a semi-tropical climate, he went to Texas to live, in Greeneville. He went into business, but in 1859 gave it up to join an expedition to Mexico, known as the Knights of the Golden Circle.

Joins Texas Rangers

At this time he walked from Greeneville to Brownville, some 700 miles, and there found a bandit war on the border. With five others he joined the famous Texas Rangers to conquer the bandits. At the close of the encounter, young Oldright went to the state capital, Austin, and it was there that he met Governor Sam Houston.

While there, reports came of Indian conflicts on the western frontier and John Oldright again volunteered his services and with another company of rangers patrolled the frontier from Wichita mountains to the Rio Grande.

Upon returning home in 1861 he found all the ports blockaded and, immediately after being mustered out, he joined the Confederate army. In telling of this service, Mr. Oldright tells of being stationed in Galveston, where the yellow fever was raging and where twenty-five per cent of the men in the garrison were claimed by the dread disease.

"At the close of the war," he says, "I didn't have a thing. The Confederate money was in about the same class with the German mark today. I was 31 years old and since I had been away from home nine years I decided to go home."

When he reached his home in Toronto his father wanted him to enter the university, but the son was interested in business and he therefore took a commercial course.

Hard Hit by Cupid

On his visit home he fell in love with Julia I. Durand, daughter of Charles Durand, prominent attorney, and the young couple were married and left their Canadian homes for Texas, where they made their home in Austin. It is with pleasure that Mr. and Mrs. Oldright are anticipating celebrating their fifty-fourth wedding anniversary the twenty-eighth of this month.

The Oldrights had two children, one of whom died in infancy, and the other a brilliant son, Charles Durand Oldright, who died at the age of 24. The son entered the University of Texas at 16 years and graduated with honors. He went abroad for higher study at the German universities and on the eve of receiving his degree of Doctor of Philosophy he died while on a visit to his parents in Texas.

To his memory Mr. and Mrs. Oldright established in 1910 a $10,000 fellowship at the University of Texas, known as the Charles Durand Oldright Fellowship in Philosophy.

In Revenue Service

During his residence in Austin, Mr. Oldright was chief clerk in the state department, captain in the Texas state guards, bank clerk, internal revenue officer and for eight years chief deputy collector of internal revenue in the third district of Texas. He retired from business activity in 1906.

Desire to travel has been one of the dominating interests of Mr. Oldright's life and it is interesting to learn that in his 76th year he went abroad, taking the Mediterranean tour of three months. During his journey he visited his birthplace on Gibraltar and upon arriving at the barracks where he was born he learned that his father's regiment, Her Majesty's Eighty-first, was in command.

His other travels took him through California, Oregon and Washington and to the Hawaiian islands. He is now anxious to visit the Orient.

Mr. and Mrs. Oldright have been Glendalians since last October and are anticipating making their home in the new Glendale Sanitarium building on the neighboring hilltop.

GLENDALE PIANIST AT BOWL

Gertrude Cleophas On Saturday Program

Carrie Jacobs Bond conferring with Emil Oberhoffer, conductor of the Hollywood Bowl summer concerts, upon the program to be played on Saturday, which has been designated as "Glendale Night," presenting Gertrude Cleophas, local pianist.

Glendalians and Iowans are to share honors Saturday night in the Hollywood Bowl, for the affair has been announced as "Glendale and Iowa Night." Glendale places a special claim on the affair for Miss Gertrude Cleophas of 337 North Central avenue, talented pianist, will take part in the program presented by the Bowl orchestra conducted by Emil Oberhoffer.

But Iowa isn't going to let Glendale enjoy all the honor of Miss Cleophas' appearance, for announcement is made by California Iowans that Miss Cleophas is a native of Iowa. So honors are pretty well balanced and a record crowd is predicted.

Miss Cleophas is to play MacDowell's "Concerto" for piano and orchestra.

An added feature will be the presence of Carrie Jacobs Bond, composer, also an Iowan, who is now a Californian.

The concert will begin promptly at 8:30 o'clock and tickets are on sale at the Glendale Music company on South Brand boulevard, the Shuck Music Company on North Brand and at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Lawyer Gets Big Fee, On South Sea Junket

MANILA, Aug. 17.—Thomas G. Aitken, a Manila attorney, Norman Cook, a retired constabulary officer; Frank D. McGee and Sherwood Sheldon, amateur sailormen, have just left for a cruise of the South Seas with their ultimate objective San Francisco on the 5-foot yawl Eleanor. They expect to check up on Frederick O'Brien. Aitken recently won an action in the Supreme Court against a cable company which netted him about $100,000 as counsel fees for a case against the government writer as though nothing can weary them. Few migrate less than 1,000 miles.

Our shore birds, the sandpipers, plovers, phalaropes, oyster-catchers, curlews, avocets, willets, godwits and turnstones spend whole days and even weeks on the wing, darting, soaring, wheeling, racing on the sandy shore or among the tules on the mud flats in some bay or marsh. The bill is sensitive at the tip and this enables them to find their food very readily.

Charm and Color

To the shore bird is given not only grace and poise above all other birds, but also charm and color. Their colors harmonize with the background of grey sea and blend with the white sand on the shore. Few species follow the same route in the spring that they do in the fall. Over seventy-five species occur in North America.

As the setting sun kindles the voices of the returning birds and as the twilight shadows were lengthening, Mr. Creager and the writer adjourned from the marshy land of "Utter's Slough" and returned to Glendale, having enjoyed an afternoon long to be remembered. It was a source of unique pleasure to be down among the tules and salicornia with the shore birds, terns and gulls feeding and playing and resting in front of us undisturbed and unfrightened.

Who Named Glendale? Inquiry of Newcomers

there the fun began. It took a good, long time to get everyone in accord, and not until Tropico was annexed a few years ago did the city become recognized on railroad maps as Glendale.

And, strange to relate, not even Mr. Sherer remembers the name of the man who established The Glendale News. Such is the history of a city.

Tradition has it, and we like to honor tradition, that a housewife of poetic inclination gave Glendale its name by referring to it as such in writing friends of the beauties of the valley. Perhaps a choice might have been made from the old Spanish names, such as Casa Verdugo, Santa Eulalia, Portosuelo or Astradero, but the selection seems to be as good as those which might have been made.

Today "Glendale" is a magical word with the people of the Middle West and East. It is almost Utopian, and its fame will spread with every newcomer. From a crossroads village, a little fruit ranching center among the hills, it has become a throbbing city of 40,000 people with its own suburbs.

No more delightful reading can be obtained by an enthusiast here than that contained in Mr. Sherer's history. Get a copy and peruse its pages some evening. Read of the Chileans and the Chinese and the Mexican bandits; get the thrill of the old days, the gold days, when cactus and jackrabbits, wildcats and sagebrush, have been replaced by beautiful bungalows and a business center of no mean proportions.

Surely it is some transition in two short score of years.

Dual Sessions Plan For Pupils of H. S.

rive at 12:05 and be at their books until 5:30. A limited number of classmen will be accorded a "split shift" such as from 9 to 3 to accommodate those from outside of the city and others engaged in special activity, according to Principal Moyse.

Incident to the double session, the cafeteria business will be greatly minimized as the students will be able, in most instances, to eat at home. Also, greater time will be given the upper classmen desiring to participate in athletic events.

Normal C. Hayhurst, director of athletics, believes that he will have a champion football team this year on account of the large number of varsity men who will again be in school. Practice work, however, will be hampered by the limitations of the athletic field.

Principal Moyse holds no hope of getting into the new half million dollar high school plant at the corner of Verdugo road and Broadway until the Thanksgiving or Christmas vacation weeks.
